Neighbors petition to end gravel operation at Aleppo Temple

Saying that the Aleppo Temple earth removal operation is in direct conflict with Wilmington bylaws, a large group of Park Street area residents petitioned selectmen for the revocation of the permit to continue work on the site.

Led by Robert Cronan and Iva Rideout, who head the Park Street Area Residents Association, homeowners presented a petition signed by 150 residents at Monday's board of selectmen meeting.

According to the petition, town bylaws state that any earth removal operation permitted in Wilmington should not endanger public health or safety, produce noise or dust, constitute a nuisance, or be detrimental to the neighborhood.

Cronan contends that the ongoing operation has violated all aspects of the bylaws. He also told selectmen that neighbors feel there is a "large scale commercial" gravel crushing operation going on with the earth removal operation, something which is not covered by the permit.

Rideout explained that approximately 24 homes in the area have experienced damage, including violent cracks which indicate structural damage. Many residents, she added, are feeling "distress and emotional strain."

"I think we're all very sympathetic," said selectman Jim Stewart, who went on to add that the board now needs to "examine our approach" to see how it can resolve the problem.

As it stands, all work has stopped on the site indefinitely, due to a cease and desist order issued by the Wilmington Conservation Commission. The order was issued because of wetland encroachment.

Now it is up to the engineer to file a Notice of Intent and restore the disturbed wetlands.

Selectmen seemed to feel that they should support and work closely with the Conservation Commission since the issue now seems to be in that board's hands. DePasquale added that selectmen could revoke the permit but the Shriners have to be allowed to remove materials on site and perhaps come back with another plan utilizing whatever space has been cleared the past two years.

On a suggestion from Robert Cain, selectmen agreed to meet with members of the Conservation Commission, planning board, board of appeals, and engineers to receive some direction on whether to close down the operation and, if they do, how to go about it.

Cronan stressed that his neighbors don't question the integrity of the Shriners' organization. They are just concerned, he said, with the "appropriateness" of the operation and feel it is not being carried out with "good faith."

Election Tuesday

Massachusetts voters will go to the polls on Tuesday in what is seen as a fairly quiet election. The election of state officers is the primary order of business, but there are also nine ballot questions.

Voting in Wilmington will take place at the Town Hall on Glen Road for voters in precincts 1, 2 and 5, and at the Wildwood School for voters in precincts 3, 4 and 6. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

An Invitation to a Party

Friends and former students of Mrs. Irene M. Brennan (Miss Sharp who was) are invited to a "Thank You" Party, on Sunday, November 16, 1986, at the Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks, from 2 to 6 p.m. Come and spend a few minutes with her so that she may thank you for sharing your lives with her over the past forty years. Refreshments will be served.

Five articles for special town meeting

Five articles, four of them dealing with the rezoning of property, will be taken up at Wilmington's special town meeting slated for Monday, December 1. Selectmen signed the warrant Monday night.

Article one seeks approval to appropriate or transfer funds for the operation of various town departments. According to Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, the article is basically to cover NESWC costs because the tipping fees are going up.

Article two, submitted by Kevin MacDonald, asks voters to rezone 10 acres of land off Andover Street from R60 to R20. MacDonald hopes to build 14 single family homes on the property instead of the five allowed under present zoning.

Article three asks to rezone approximately six acres behind the North Wilmington shopping center from R20 to General Business. Petitioner Steve Lawrenson wishes to add the six acres to another parcel of land he owns adjacent to the property.

Article four asks to rezone seven acres by West Street from R20 to General Industrial Zone. The petitioner is Albert Fiorenza.

Article five, submitted by the Chisholm family, asks voters to rezone approximately 38 acres north of Hopkins Street near the Shawsheen River from R60 to R20. At the annual town meeting in April, Lester Chisholm sought to rezone approximately 62 acres of the same property. He withdrew the article before any action could be taken.

A joint public hearing of the Finance Committee and the Wilmington Planning Board will be held on the articles on Tuesday, November 18 at the Town Hall.

Two week suspension for Shamrock license

Because of "overwhelming evidence" that alcohol was sold to minors on at least one occasion, the Wilmington Board of Selectmen Monday voted to suspend Shamrock Liquor's alcoholic beverage license between December 1 and December 14.

The board also denied Shamrock attorney Kevin Sullivan's motion to dismiss the charges. Sullivan moved to dismiss stating that under Mass. General Law, witnesses should have been under oath during the hearing, which had been continued from October 14. He asked that his motion be placed in the record in case of an appeal.

The case was brought before selectmen by Police Chief Bobby Stewart. According to testimony, Sgt. James Palmer and Officer Pat King of the Selective Enforcement Unit observed the three minors purchasing beer in the store in August. The minors--Robert Bussey Jr (20 years) of Dracut, Bridget Scully (18 years) of Woburn and Kathy Verhehan (18 years) of Woburn--subsequently were arrested and pleaded guilty in Woburn District Court. Also cited were the two clerks who allegedly sold them the alcohol and have since resigned from their jobs. On advice from their lawyers, they were not present at the proceedings.

At Monday's hearing, both officers as well as Sgt. William Gable, Deputy Chief Bernard Nally, and the three juveniles took the stand. Each of the minors told the board they had not been asked to produce proof of age.

Throughout the lengthy proceedings, Sullivan tried to prove that the juveniles were promised leniency if they cooperated with Wilmington police. At one point, Bursey admitted the officers told him they needed his statement to try to revoke Shamrock's license. However, all three said they were not coerced into signing statements.

Perhaps one of the most damaging statements came in answer to a query by selectmen chairman Rocco DePasquale. When asked why underage young people would come from out of town to purchase alcohol from Shamrock, Verhehan replied that the store "has a reputation for not proofing."

The three six packs of beer seized by Palmer and the two cases seized by King were presented as evidence. Deputy Chief Nally testified that he took the beer for analysis around October 23 but he was unable to obtain a certified analysis. He did produce a gross Exam Certificate which he said certifies that the cans were sealed and contained what is written on the label.

During the hearing on October 14, Chief Stewart said he would produce the beer as well as the minors for questioning so there was no question of "heresy evidence."

In his closing statements, Chief Stewart said he felt the department "has proven its case." He also brought up a prior incident involving Shamrock selling alcohol to a minor on September 14, 1984. Though Sullivan argued this was an "alleged offense" and never proven in a hearing, Chief Stewart pointed out Shamrock received a warning and the firm's vice-president acknowledged the sale.

"I consider that a first violation," he added.

In his closing remarks, Sullivan said "we're in a Catch-22 situation." He suggested that since the two clerks deny ever selling beer to the minors and claim they checked identification of anyone appearing to be under 25 that night, the juveniles may have falsified their IDs.

"It's easier to say I bought those alcoholic beverages and get me out of here" rather than admit to falsifying identification, said Sullivan. Altering identification is a felony which carries up to a five year sentence, Chief Stewart said later.

Shamrock has always been "extremely cautious" about selling to minors, added Sullivan, calling the 14 day suspension "a very harsh penalty."

Will change of league help Wildcat teams?

To afford a better competitive edge, Wilmington High School athletes may find themselves part of the Cape Ann League come next September.

The process to join the smaller league was begun at last Wednesday's school committee meeting as Athletic Director Jim Gillis sought and received an okay to submit a letter of application to the league. Gillis cited Wilmington's smaller enrollment and the unfairness of competing against schools with a larger pool of students to draw from as the chief reason for leaving the Merrimack Valley conference (MVC). Gillis told committeemen with a total of approximately 700 students to draw from as compared to 1,800 from Lowell alone, Wilmington athletes are at a distinct disadvantage and near the bottom, as far as enrollment goes.

His decision, explained Gillis, was not hasty but one he has seen coming for the "past seven or so

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant

THE (401)K IS LOOKING GOOD

If you were a young executive frozen out of your I.R.A. wouldn't you try to stash away as much as possible, tax deductible, in your company's salary reduction retirement plan? You bet — and that's why the (401)k plans are going to see a lot of action under the new law.

Even though the maximum employee contribution has been cut to $7,000 from a high of $30,000, the large majority of participants never put in more than $7,000. In addition, the company's contribution is not so limited, and can be as high as 25 percent of the employee's compensation. We can expect to see more (401)k plans set up to shelter those who lose their I.R.A. deductibility.

On the down side, the new law is expected to make it tougher to get money OUT of a (401)k plan. Under the old rules, employees could get permit withdrawals for any "hardship" reason, from college tuition to a medical bill, but under the new law there's expected to be a 10 percent penalty for early withdrawals.

Wilmington School News

by Arlene Surprenant
West Intermediate
Assistant Superintendent Henry Dembowski will be the guest speaker at Wednesday night's PAC (Oct. 29) meeting, scheduled for 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the West Intermediate library.

Other agenda items slated for discussion are the annual magazine drive; interims, report cards, and new programs; an update on the school library; and the School Improvement Council for 1986-87. Please plan to attend this first meeting of the year.

*****
Project Enterprise students in the eighth grade at the West will be hosting a Halloween Luncheon for Wilmington senior citizens this Friday, Oct. 31.

The students sent out invitation san will provide mask favors, carved pumpkins for centerpieces, and decorated cookies for dessert.

Shawsheen Elementary School

Students at Shawsheen will be given an opportunity to browse and purchase books and related materials at the school's annual Book Fair Oct. 29 to Nov. 5.

According to Media Specialist Martha Mahoney, students from each grade will visit the fair with his or her class. Parents are also invited to go and purchase books on Oct. 30 and Nov. 4 from 8:30 to 9 a.m. and 3 to 3:30 p.m.

Book prices range upward from $1.50 and they appeal to different reading levels and ages. A percentage of all sales will go back to the school.

Woburn Street School

Fourth graders in the Woburn Street School will have a living history experience when Ben Franklin appears in their classrooms Oct. 30.

Ben, portrayed by Bill Meikle, will discuss his life and the many important events of the late 1700's that shaped the future of our country. The children are presently studying the text, 'The People'. Ben Franklin will bring some of these pages to life. Some of the students will be portraying other historical characters during the course of the week.

Wildwood School

Sixth grade students are involved in several special activities this week. On Tues., Oct. 28, they attended a musical performance at the Collins Center for the Performing Arts in Andover. "But I'm Only Just a Kid" was performed by 11 musicians and vocalists from Canada and encompassed a variety of musical styles.

On Wednesday, the sixth graders will take a trip to the Congregational Church in Wilmington to do gravestone rubbings. This activity will tie into the current language arts and history curriculum in the classroom. Expanding on the Halloween theme, the classes will be decorating pumpkins and writing about them that same afternoon.

*****
The next PAC meeting will be held in the Wildwood School cafeteria on Monday, Nov. 3 at 1 p.m. All parents who cannot attend evening meetings are especially encouraged to be on hand. All fundraisers have been planned and now selection of PAC-sponsored activities for the year is a top priority and the main item on the agenda for the meeting. Baked goods for the Election Day bake sale can be taken to the meeting or dropped off at school the next day by 9 a.m.

Wildwood School sweatshirts are due in next week. Hundreds were sold in a rainbow of colors.

Author's Note: This is your column and your chance to share school happenings with other Wilmington residents. If you have any news, please call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696 or drop it at the Town Crier office by Monday evenings.

St. Elizabeth's Bazaar

St. Elizabeth's Chapel of Wilmington will hold its annual Christmas and fall bazaar Saturday, Nov. 1 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Chapel on the Corner of Forest Street and Aldrich Road.

Features will include homemade crafts, knitted and baked goods, cider, candy and lunch.

The public is not only invited, but urged to attend. For more information call 658-2487.

Car wash

The Junior Class of Wilmington High School held a car wash and bake sale on Saturday in front of the school. Tackling one car were Tim Moran, Liz Morris, Janice Craig and Stephanie Rosa.

Halloween safety tips

Children in Wilmington will be trick or treating for Halloween, and Chief Stewart and Safety Officer Shelley are reminding motorists to be on the alert!

Youngsters will be walking the streets thinking about fun, not safety, said Officer Shelley. "This puts an added burden on motorists who need to be especially careful when driving in residential areas."

Advice for parents to help make this Halloween safe for their children:

- The most important thing is visibility. Make sure your children can see and be seen. If the children must be out at night, they should wear light colored costumes, preferably outlined in reflective tape.

- A flashlight will not only allow them to light their path, it will serve as a warning to oncoming motorists.

- Face masks reduce peripheral vision. An alternative is makeup.
- If a face mask is necessary, make sure the children know they should take off the mask before crossing the street.

- Make sure a parent, older brother or sister, or guardian goes with the children when they trick or treat.

- If someone older cannot go along, be sure children travel in groups rather than alone.

- Plan the trick or treat route ahead of time. Pick streets that are well-lighted.

- Remind children to cross only at corners. Never cross the street between cars or in the middle of the block.

- If there is no sidewalk, walk facing traffic.
- Wait until getting home to sort, check and eat treats.

REMEMBER! Teamwork between parents, drivers and children can help make a safe Halloween.

Wilmington selectmen proclaim "Drug Awareness Day"

A statewide effort to raise citizen's awareness and eliminate drug and alcohol abuse will be highlighted November 18. That date has been set aside as 'Drug Awareness Day' by the Massachusetts Municipal Association.

Wilmington selectmen signed a proclamation saying drugs "threaten the quality of life and the health of the nation." The proclamation named the 18th 'Drug Awareness Day' and called on all citizens to join in the effort.

Wilmington town officials to speak at LWV meeting

The League of Women Voters of Wilmington will host its third annual "Meet Your Town Officials" program Wednesday, Nov. 12, 7:30 p.m. at K of C Hall, Wilmington.

Town officials will each speak briefly about the workings of their boards, including any issues currently before them, and will remain following the program to meet and talk with the public they serve.

The public is invited.

Planning approval delayed

by Bill Conlon
The Tewksbury Planning Board this week held off giving its approval to a proposed extension of Debra Drive, until more could be learned about the activities of one of the neighbors to the new lots.

William Troy, who made the presentation to the board, said that the current street would be extended to allow for the formation of three additional building lots.

But the activities by Tewksbury resident Anthony Samsel, whose property abuts one of the new lots, was called into question by the board, prompting the delay.

According to board member Robert Sullivan, Samsel has in the past posted "skull and crossbones" signs warning of pesticide use on the property, along with playing of loud music to improve the growth of his plants. Sullivan said he wants a letter stating that no poisons are being used and that there will be no loud music from Samsel's property.

It was pointed out that Samsel is believed to be selling the land, but Sullivan said he still wants the letter in hand before approving the new subdivision.

According to Troy, the new properties would be called "Donovan's Way," named for the owner of the land, Al Donovan.

"It's better than calling it 'The Extension of Debra Drive' subdivision," Troy remarked, in response to questions about possible confusion over the name. Troy noted that the road would still be named Debra Drive.

Troy said that the present turn-around at the end of Debra Drive would be removed and seeded with grass, with a new turn-around built at the end of the extension.

Troy's plans showed an extension of Debra Drive of about 325 feet.

Planning board member George Donovan left the group during the discussion, to avoid a possible conflict of interest because of family ties with the property owner.

Chemicals removed

Six barrels of preservatives were removed from an area in North Wilmington adjacent to the B&M railroad tracks last Wednesday. The barrels of preservatives had been found on Monday by Jack Burke of the Wilmington Fire Dept. The barrels were removed under contract by Clean Harbors. Contaminated soil was also removed.

HVAC wins Shawsheen bid

by Arlene Surprenant
After extensive debate on the pros and cons of purchasing a new computerized energy system covering heating, ventilation, and air conditioning in the school, Shawsheen Tech School Committee members approved the low bid from HVAC Controls Inc. from Billerica. The firm edged out both American Emergency Management, which supplies Harvard University, and Cutler Energy Associates.

The $194,000 HVAC Control Modification Project comes with an 11 year service contract and will cost $7,000 per year to maintain, with the exception of the first year which is free.

The project provides for the distribution of 85 temperature sensors and 25 control systems throughout the school. Should one fail, said engineer Peter Dreher, there would be no effect on the rest of the system. Also, added Dreher, the installation of the system is expected to save an estimated $47,000 annually in energy and maintenance costs.

This last prompted chairman John Miller to point out the committee never saw any savings six years ago with Honeywell and he hoped for guaranteed savings this time.

When Dreher explained the former Superintendent/Director was most concerned with the system's comfort level, some members said that wasn't top priority with them.

"We're at a loss here because none of us saw the specs," Anthony Mazzone explained. Members mentioned that maintenance, reliability and continuity, energy savings, and efficiency rated high with them.

There are several benefits with the system, members were told. HVAC requires less maintenance time and the firm providing the system can easily be reached in an emergency as it is located right across the street from the school. It was revealed there is also a 3.8 year payback period.

Seek limit on Christmas tree permits

by Arlene Surprenant

Several Wilmington nursery and florist shop owners were present at Monday's board of selectmen meeting to seek a limit on the number of licenses issued to Christmas tree vendors. They also seemed to feel the $10 license fee was unfair because it prevented them from remaining competitive with overhead costs forcing them to sell trees at higher prices than independent vendors.

Jerry O'Donnell of Maple Meadow Garden Center told selectmen business owners "commit to trailerloads" of trees ordered in August and it's not fair "to allow every Tom, Dick, or Harry in the town of Wilmington to sell trees." He added "if we don't make it at Christmas time, it's a long winter."

One independent vendor felt there was a "danger" in limiting the number of people who could sell trees. He appealed to selectmen to afford everyone a fair chance, pointing out many vendors leave after one year because it's difficult to make a profit.

Selectman Jim Stewart said it was his understanding if you own a business in town you can automatically sell trees. The board learned that only six Wilmington residents applied for a license last year and seven owners sold trees as an extension of their business.

The board expects to act on all licenses at its November 10 meeting. There is a possibility, too, members may vote to increase the license fee this year.

Tech votes $2000 for homecoming

by Arlene Surprenant

The Shawsheen Tech School Committee authorized the School Improvement Council to spend $2,000 on this week-end's Homecoming events at their meeting Tuesday night. However, several members, initially, took exception to using funds for food, music, flowers, decorations, and related expenses.

"These are taxpayers' dollars; let there be no mistake," said Kevin Sowyrda explaining the funds might be better spent on much needed equipment or in other creative ways rather than for "carte blanche."

"You can't run this (Homecoming Week-end) like a charity bazaar," agreed Richard Griffin, who fought for more detailed information outlining what the monies would cover.

Committeeman Ken Buffum backed the council's request.

"In essence, this is the first attempt to run a program like this," he said, adding that it is therefore difficult to tell just how the money should be spent. He and several others felt the planned events were a good way to bring graduates back and to provide additional publicity for the school.

John McDermott, chairman of the council, explained that his group favored utilizing the funds because the Homecoming will involve and benefit all students. He added that the council will have to document every expenditure for the state.

The Tech School Improvement Council had approved $5,000 to develop a school alcohol and drug prevention program, $5,000 for public relations, and $5,000 for the School Spirit Fund. The Homecoming events on tap for this week-end fall under the last category.

Strategic planning grant turned down

Wilmington will have to look elsewhere for funds to hire an expert to help the town continue its inventory of town-owned land.

According to Town Manager Buzz Stapeczynski, Wilmington's application for a Strategic Planning Grant was turned down by EOCD. Stapeczynski was told only 16 out of 29 communities received grants and he was referred to the Massachusetts Housing Partnership coordinator for funding. One other option available is to set aside funds in next year's budget to hire an expert.

The grant would have helped the Affordable Housing Task Force in its quest to make homes affordable to citizens on a limited income. Now, said task force chairman Jim Stewart, "a big burden" will be placed on Planning Coordinator Sandra Murphy, who will be expected to take on much of the work.

Applications still available for Ride

Now is the time to take advantage of The Ride. Wilmington residents who have a disability confirmed by their doctor are eligible to participate. The Ride program is sponsored by the MBTA Office for Special Needs.

The Ride allows local residents and a companion to travel in a handicapped van (or on the MBTA) to Burlington, Lincoln, Concord, Lexington, Woburn, Winchester, Bedford, Wilmington and Boston.

The cost is 75 cents one way. To travel to Boston, the cost is $1.50 one way.

In order to participate, you must fill out an application and then make a reservation three days in advance.

For applications or further information contact: Judy DiPalma, 658-5107; Larry Curtis, 658-5436 or Office for Special Needs, 722-5123.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowryda

When he began his career in the state legislature 22 years ago, it probably would have been difficult for William Robinson to imagine that he would now find himself as one of the most respected Republican legislators in the Commonwealth. And today, as his party's nominee for the office of State Auditor, Robinson is fighting as hard as he was when he first ran for State Representative.

Robinson's career in politics came about because of a local budget issue in Melrose. Having just moved to the town only seven months earlier, Bill was dissatisfied with the incumbent state representative's blocking of a bond issue for the Melrose public school system. Robinson was so dissatisfied that he ran against the state rep and captured the seat in 1964. At that time he became one of 91 Republicans in a 240-member House.

Today, as Robinson prepares to leave his state rep seat in his quest for the office of State Auditor, the Republicans number 33 out of 160 in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Furthermore, Republicans number less than 14 percent of the statewide voter registration. Simply put, this man has seen his political party gradually roll down the hill, and in the last few months suffer through the Switzler and Hyatt controversy; also known as the Abbott and Costello show.

But Robinson has ridden high above the infighting and confusion of the state G.O.P. His primary win on September 16 against state party chairman Andrew Natsios was a clear message that voters saw him as a breed apart; that is, from the party leadership that had reigned over the endless confusion of the spring and summer months.

And it is all to no wonder, as Robinson has won support and credibility from across the state on Beacon Hill. The reason is his record as a legislator, and it is upon this that Robinson is asking he be judged, and not simply the letter that follows his name on the House roster.

Throughout his tenure on Beacon Hill, Robinson has earned the reputation of a champion of the taxpayer as well as a friend of the consumer. Bill was one of the first legislators to fight for Proposition 2 1/2 from the outset. More recently, Robinson, who is the Minority Leader in the House, has been a major force in the efforts to repeal the 'Dukakis Surtax'. He has continually revealed the true amount of the state surplus revenues and has fought for these funds to be used to provide more local aid to cities and towns. Accordingly, Robinson has been an advocate of 100 percent reimbursement of federal revenue sharing losses.

In the area of consumer rights legislation, Robinson pushed through a bill to lower the interest rates on credit cards, and was the sponsor of the Massachusetts 'Lemon Law' which protects the rights of consumers purchasing new automobiles.

And finally, Robinson has had his share of honors through being named legislator of the year, by both the Citizens for Limited Taxation and the Massachusetts Municipal Association.

However, this is to say nothing about Robinson's opponent in the Auditor's race, State Rep. Joe DeNucci. DeNucci is probably best known as a former boxing star who went on to become the legislator from Newton. Though respected as a hard working rep., DeNucci has continually voted against legislative measures that would increase the powers of the state auditor's office, and is recognized as a fiscal liberal. Specifically, DeNucci has been opposed to the surtax repeal, as well as to increasing the personal exemption on state income taxes. As to his voting record on issues affecting the office of State Auditor, DeNucci has been opposed to establishing the Division of Local Mandates, which would give the Auditor the ability to make sure that Proposition 2 1/2 works. As a watchdog agency geared to eliminating waste in government, it would only make sense that the voters strive to elect not so much a conservative person in general, but someone who is at least conservative fiscally. Robinson clearly fits this description, as DeNucci does not.

Obviously, Robinson's greatest liability is simply his party designation. The Boston Globe itself, which usually eats Republicans for breakfast, has flattered Bill Robinson for his record as a significant and credible legislator. And, were it not for that party designation, there is no doubt in the minds of many that it would be Robinson who would easily receive the endorsement of many factions in the Boston press.

Ironically, some have argued as to the strength of a Republican in an office such as State Auditor. The proposition has been put that a member of the minority party would better act as a watchdog over the expenditures of a Democratic controlled state legislature.

In a political year which has seen some rather interesting events occur in the Republican Party, Bill Robinson has been a shining light. And, with polls indicating up to 30 percent of the voters undecided in this race, Robinson could stand a chance of taking this seat. Though not so much for his party, but for the hard working taxpayers of the Commonwealth.

Though unopposed in his re-election bid for the State Senate, Bob Buell is well-deserving of a high vote of confidence on election day next Tuesday. As the senator for the First Essex Middlesex District, Buell has exemplified himself as a competent legislator who has been a consistent advocate of low taxes and the development of private business in Massachusetts.

Politically, Senator Buell is a conservative who believes strongly in the principles of local control. As such, he has been named 'Legislator of the Year' by the Massachusetts Municipal Association. Furthermore, Bob Buell has been keen on constituency services as well as working with the town government on a number of issues.

On Beacon Hill, Buell is recognized as a ranking member of the State Senate, having a good working relationship with President William Bulger. On a number of occasions Bulger has named Buell to conference committees dealing with critical pieces of legislation.

As a conservative, hard working state senator, who is always accessible to the voters, Bob Buell has earned a good reelection vote on November fourth.

Ballot questions may attract voters

Massachusetts voters may have the impression the state election next week will be a ho-hum affair. But even though there are many uncontested candidates, nine ballot questions will make the election very interesting, and will give voters the chance to have some direct impact on such important issues as abortion, hazardous waste clean-up, and the seat belt law.

Tewksbury residents will be directly impacted by the outcome of Question 2, on government aid to non-public schools and students. The matter of public school buses for private school students hinges on the outcome of that question.

The questions fall into four different categories: constitutional amendments, initiative petitions, referendum petition, and advisory questions.

Question 1 is a proposed amendment to the state constitution, which would allow the state Legislature to regulate or prohibit abortion or the funding of abortion, to the extent permitted by the United States Constitution.

Question 2, also a proposed constitutional change, would allow government aid to non-public schools and non-public school students.

Question 3 relates to a law proposed by initiative petition which would repeal the 7 1/2 percent surtax on state income tax and put a limit on state tax increases.

Question 4 is a law proposed by initiative petition which would set specific timetables and standards for the cleanup of oil or hazardous materials which have been improperly disposed of.

Question 5 is a referendum on a law requiring the use of seat belts in automobiles.

Question 6 is an initiative petition to allow voter registration by mail.

Question 7 is a non-binding question to have the state urge the United States Congress to enact a national health program.

Question 8 is also a non-binding question. It would have the state urge the President and Congress to enact a national acid rain control program.

A ninth question, labeled Question A, asks if the voter favors the creation of a county charter commission. Wilmington Selectman Bob Cain is unopposed on the ballot for the commission, and would thus be elected, if it is created.

The office of the Secretary of State has distributed a booklet which gives full information on each of the ballot questions. Additional copies of the booklet are available in the Town Hall or by calling toll free 1-800-392-6090.

Due to the number of questions and the complexity of the issues, voters are urged to study the booklet and make decisions before going to the polls. The booklet has a section in which to make notes on how you plan to vote on each question. Using it will greatly simplify your visit to the polls. Election day is Tuesday, Nov. 4.

25 years ago

The November 2, 1961 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

Wilmington was named for the finals in the All-American Cities Award. There were 22 finalists from a total of 82 entries. Judging would take place in Miami November 30-Dec. 1. The event was sponsored by The National Municipal League and Look Magazine.

Selectmen signed a written statement demanding an apology or written evidence supporting an allegation in an editorial in the previous week's Town Crier, charging some of the members of the board with dishonesty.

Pictured celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Wilmington Women's Club were Mrs. Edmund Ferguson, president and past presidents Mrs. John Hayward, Mrs. Robert Michelson, Mrs. Edward Neilson, Mrs. Michael Barry, Mrs. Harold Melzar, Mrs. Esther Buzzell, Mrs. August

McLeod, Mrs. Herbert Pickering and Mrs. Thomas LaFonatis.

American Legion Post 136 was advertising movies at the hall from 2 to 4 p.m., every Saturday at a cost of 25 cents.

First National Stores offered steak at 99 cents a pound; broccoli at 25 cents a bunch and grapefruit at five for 39 cents.

North Wilmington Hardware advertised a lawn sweeper for $19.95 and 24" bamboo rakes for 98 cents.

St. Dorothy's Sodality was scheduled to hear an address by Mrs. Marguerite (Peg) Tibbits of Tewksbury, an expert in the field of ceramics.

Claire Graham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Graham of Eames Street, was advanced to the sophomore course in zoology at U. Mass. An honor student with the W.H.S. Class of '61, Claire was one of 50 students who were advanced out of 215 who took the exam.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

Question 3 on the Nov. 4 ballot offers voters the appealing prospect of limiting state taxes. But a closer look reveals that what Question 3 will really limit is the ability of Massachusetts to function properly.

Never mind that Massachusetts is no longer "Taxachusetts" (our state tax burden is now 15 percent below the national average).

Question 3 is appealing because it promises voters money in their pockets by limiting state taxes to the average three-year's growth in wages and salaries. Now, while our state is experiencing an economic boom, this proposal seems to make sense.

History has shown us, however, that the economy moves in cycles and that booms turn into recessions, and it's during recessions that Question 3 would act like a straitjacket, inhibiting the economy's ability to rebound by tying the state's revenue-raising capacity to wage and salary growth which would have been kept at an extremely low level (perhaps zero level) by the recession.

The sponsors of Question 3-- Citizens for Limited Taxation-- are the same people who brought us Proposition 2 1/2, "Trust us," they say, "Proposition 2 1/2 worked, and so will Question 3."

There's one big problem with this logic. Question 3 threatens the one revenue source that made Proposition 2 1/2 work--state aid. Since 1980, when voters approved Prop. 2 1/2, state aid to cities and towns has doubled from $1.2 billion to $2.4 billion.

Question 3 only addresses state revenues. Proposition 2 1/2 already limits local revenue increases to 2.5 percent per year, well below the increase in wages and salaries, and federal revenues aren't increasing at all, they're decreasing. This year, Massachusetts lost $77 million in federal revenue sharing funds, an will lose another $350 million this fall as a result of the federal budget cuts.

The state is the only remaining source of revenue we have, and CLT wants to choke that off. How will we clean up toxic wastes, improve education, repair bridges and roads, replace old prisons, and support affordable housing if we place that one remaining revenue source in a straitjacket? The answer is a simple one--we won't be able to.

The governor and the legislature have at last enacted a responsible tax cap which protects us from overcollections by the state while still giving Massachusetts the ability to meet unexpected needs. We do not need Question 3.

For all of these reasons, Question 3 deserves to be rejected by voters on November 4.

Sincerely
Richard Mousseau, President
Tewksbury Teachers Assoc.

There were plenty of disappointed Sox fans in Wilmington on Monday night, but Blackie didn't show a bit of emotion. He just settled down in his favorite chair with his baseball hat and went to sleep, while his pals, the Pellerins of Glen Road, agonized over the World Series.

New hope for men

It is currently fashionable for newspapers to run features on "New Hope for Women: Working to Stop Family Violence." Men, however, are less likely to admit that they are abused, and, although the problem is wide spread, it was only with the promise of anonymity that our reporter was able to obtain this interview from a man we will call Herman Wimple.

"Do you know what it's like to walk on a knife's edge - day after day after day? Her tongue is sharper than any knife you've ever seen and she first started to cut me apart with it years ago. She'd have a bad day and then take it out on me when we got home. I never said anything because I was brought up to believe that if you wanted to keep peace in the family, you'd simply turn the other cheek. So for years I kept quiet while she'd rave like Hitler until she'd worked herself up into a regular frenzy. Then she'd usually jump in the car and tear off to charge up something that we couldn't afford. That was how she'd get back at me for not earning as much as Billy, who was her girlfriend's husband.

"One day it got to the point where she'd drive something at the wall before she'd leave. I didn't know what to do, because everything I did was wrong. If I'd try to reason with her, she'd say I was patronizing. And because I never lost control of myself--never even raised my voice--she'd get even madder. She'd tease me and taunt me to fight back like a man. A psychologist recently advised me that had I given her backside a therapeutic slap way back then I could have put our marriage on an even keel. But were we to start fresh today I know I couldn't bring myself to administer the therapy--even knowing the good in it.

"She finally started throwing things at me instead of at the wall because I couldn't do anything right. When I brought her a small present, she'd demand to know what I'd been up to. If I forgot an anniversary or her mother's birthday, I was a thoughtless wimp. Then, she'd cry and beg me to forgive her. What can you do when a woman who pounds on you suddenly cries and promises to be reasonable? Women have all the weapons and are shameless, consummate masters of them all.

"All this time I was trying to hold together what should have been a home. Our kids were feeling the pressure just like I was and their grades were dropping at school. The oldest one started doing pretty much as he liked, because every time I'd tell him what he could or couldn't do, his mother would tell him just the opposite.

"And it was all my fault. Do you have any idea of what it's like to have the woman you married pointing out all your flaws to your children? She said I couldn't do anything right, and it finally got to the point where she'd slap me around in front of the children to prove it. I felt trapped.

"Just when I felt I couldn't take another beating I discovered New Hope For Men, an organization for mistreated and abused husbands.

"I wasn't surprised to learn that there are more abused husbands in the area than is generally admitted. This is because few men will confess that behind pulled shades they are treated with less respect and consideration than is accorded the family pet--that many are silent victims of psychological abuse and physical violence.

"Men are always accused of running around, but you'd drop dead exhausted in your tracks if you tried to keep up with some of the women in this town who masquerade as honest wives. I'm not much to look at, but some have even tried to put the move on me.

"One of the great things about NHFM is that it's a support group--we discuss our women and our inability to cope with their problems. I was surprised but encouraged to learn that most women are much easier to live with if you can get them to eat two apples and a big bowl of bran flakes every day.

"I didn't feel so bad when Harold--that isn't his name--showed us his bruises. This little scar over my eye isn't really anything compared to what Harold will carry to his grave.

"I was telling about the blatant way women cheat on their honest husbands. Most men at NHFM would rather take a beating and get it over with than live with that kind of constant psychological clawing--it keeps a man's nerve ends raw and screaming. Our physical bruises are secondary--they heal relatively quickly. Harold's got a raft of kids and they come in more colors than you'd find in the rainbow, but he tries to hold up his head and make a joke of it. When anyone asks him if they're his kids he laughs and says he figures they are--they were caught in his trap. I suppose it is better to laugh than cry, and that's why I'm grateful for this New Hope For Men--there are a lot of us out here who don't know which we should do."

Settling pond

A crane works at removing gypsum from a settling pond at Olin Chemical. The rubber-lined pond was used to collect and evaporate gypsum, a by-product of Olin's manufacturing process.

Slated for demolition

Olin Corporation is planning to demolish this building by the end of the year. Because the siding on the building contains asbestos, it will be removed and packed in containers with plastic lining.

Olin Chemical cleaning up after shutting down

Olin Corporation is preparing to demolish two buildings at the now-closed Olin Chemicals plant on Eames Street. Plant manager Ron McBrien said the buildings are scheduled to be torn down by the end of the year.

The demolition of buildings is but one phase of shut-down operations currently underway at the plant. There is a crane removing gypsum from two lagoons. On back land, there is large earth-moving operation to prepare an area of about seven acres to receive that gypsum.

The gypsum is a by-product of the manufacturing process which took place at the plant. Its burial is being closely watched by state and local officials, and is said to pose no potential harm to the environment.

There was a shipment of chemicals sent from the plant about two weeks ago, part of a general cleaning out of the plant.

The company has moved its offices from a two story building to a one-story building, to conserve heat.

There are still 22 people working at the plant, but on Nov. 3, that figure will be cut back to 12. By the first of the year, there will only be four people there.

The company plans to eventually demolish most of the 12 to 15 buildings on the site. The only ones to remain will be the office building and a treatment plant.

The two buildings slated for demolition this fall are both chemical process buildings. The demolition process will not be as easy as it might seem. The siding on the buildings is made Transite, a combination of concrete and asbestos.

Because of that asbestos, the Transite panels will have to be carefully removed and placed in a plastic-lined dumpster.

The plant was originally built in the early 1950's as National Polychemicals. In 1964 it was sold to Stepan Corp., and then to Olin in 1980.

Olin announced the closing of the plant in late spring, citing market conditions as the reason. A Korean firm is marketing an almost identical product at a price lower than Olin's cost.

The final batch of chemicals was mixed in July, and by September, all manufacturing operations had ceased.

Burial area

A burial area for gypsum is being prepared on land owned by Olin. The dirt in the foreground is being put in as a "berm" to surround the pit. The gypsum will be placed in the area to the left of the photo. The operation is being closely monitored by state and local officials.

Excavation work

This view shows the area to be occupied by gypsum. In the foreground, a truck brings in fill which will become part of the berm around the perimeter of the area. The large backhoe in the background is moving previously buried gypsum.

For years, every time you've made your mortgage payment, you've increased your equity in your home. PRIME CREDIT is a revolving line of credit that allows you to loan yourself money based upon that equity and your financial situation.

Once your application has been approved for PRIME CREDIT, you'll simply write a special PRIME CREDIT check whenever you want to access your credit line. It's as easy as that. And you'll be able to pay it back at a much lower interest rate than you'll find for most other kinds of loans. Our PRIME CREDIT rate is just 1% over our base lending rate and is adjusted monthly. For example, today's Base is 7.5% so your Annual Percentage Rate is 8.5%.

For more information about PRIME CREDIT, just return the coupon and we'll send you our free brochure. Or call our PRIME CREDIT department at 617/681-7215.

Rudy Altenbach will be missed

Copyright © 1986
by Capt. Larz Neilson

Rudi K. Altenbach died at his home in Stowe October 9, 1986. An American engineer, he was a man who served in the German Army in World War II, and who spent two years as a prisoner of war in an Alabama POW camp.

Born in Frieberg, Bavaria, in the southern part of Germany in 1920, Rudy was destined, like many other European youths born in that year, to participate in the Second World War, 1939-1945. He fought in Poland, France, Russia and Northern Africa and was captured by the U.S. Army in Tunisia, in May 1943.

He had been serving, not in the Afrika Korps, but in the army of General von Arnim, in Tunisia. The capture took place on Cape Bon, in the northeastern sector of that country.

Italians, who were captured at the same time had a jeering comment to make to their American captors. "Ha, You are only going to Italy! But we are going to America!"

The Germans may or may not have made that comment, but fate was kind to them in sending them to an American Prisoner of War camp. They were well fed. They were able to work in the fields of local farms, and thus earn some money. There was a library for their use. There were classes in the English language, about American government, and in physics, mathematics and engineering.

The war ended in May 1945. American troopships, battleships and airplane carriers were mobilized to "bring the boys home." The writer commanded one of those troopships.

Twice a month for six months the Chanute Victory carried home 1600 or more US soldiers. All the voyages were made safely. In perhaps eight instances the Chanute Victory also carried German soldiers to Europe, 800 at a time.

That, it will be noted, was only half the number of US soldiers who were carried on that ship. Some of the spare space was utilized as living quarters for the military police, needed on a ship carrying prisoners of war.

The Germans were taken to Liverpool, in England; to Le Havre, in France; or to Antwerp in Belgium. In each and every instance they were turned over to some British soldiers commanded by a major.

To know about World II one had to see the bomb wracked buildings of those cities. Those buildings were not a pleasant sight.

It was interesting to watch the British Major, as he received the German soldiers.

The soldiers would be lined up on the pier and the major, with a "swagger stick" under his right arm, would saunter down the line of the prisoners, looking at each one intently. Finally there would be a German prisoner who would be slightly out of line - his toe protruding ahead of the feet of the others.

The major would step on that toe, hard. He would grind with his heel. That would be the message.

"Keep in line! Don't try anything!"

Then the Germans would be marched off the pier.

What the writer did not realize was that those prisoners still had six months to serve, before they would get to Germany. It was the same in all three countries. There were buildings to be torn down, and streets to be mended, and it would be done by those German prisoners.

A few words on how the Germans on board the Chanute Victory were treated. It was, to all intents and purposes, the same treatment given to the American troops. The same quarters, the same food.

The only difference was that they were locked below decks at sunset, and not released until eight the next morning. Those were Army orders, not ship's regulations.

Every morning the Captain would make an inspection of the ship, including troop quarters. Cleanliness was the rule.

It would be cleaner with the Germans. On the first voyage there was chewing gum for sale, and wads of chewing gum were left on the deck by the American soldiers. None were left by the Germans. Possibly they did not get any.

But after that first voyage chewing gum was always crossed off, in the list of stores to be purchased in the United States. It was the captain who did it.

Every morning, with breakfast, for American or for German, there would be some fruit, an orange, or a banana or such. The captain would then see an orange peel on the deck, somewhere. The captain would point it and remark.

With American soldiers there might be an orange peel again, next morning. With the German soldiers, never again!

It was interesting to compare notes with Rudy Altenbach, when we met, say about 1960.

He had spent two years in an American POW camp while his wife, a German nurse, endured two years of British bombing each nighttime and American bombing during the day. Definitely she had the worst time, in those two years.

Notes were compared, about being a prisoner on an American ship. Rudy, like the others, spent six months repairing the streets of France. It was the first that the captain knew of that six month service.

Rudy and his wife Hildegard wanted to get to America, but it was impossible. The quota was always full.

So the couple emigrated to Canada, and from there they moved to the United States. He became an engineer, along Route 128. She raised poodles. They had lived in Bedford, and then on a small farm, in Stowe. Hildegard trained her poodles for obedience trials, and in recent years she took her dogs to nursing homes to entertain the patients. Those patients look forward to her periodic visits.

Rudy Altenbach, in his youth, endured the brutal post World War I inflation and depression in Germany. He served his native country faithfully and honorably, in the German Army.

As an American citizen he loved his adopted country and valued intensely the free institutions, the political liberty and the personal opportunity available to Americans. He will be missed by his American friends.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending October 28, Wilmington police officers responded to seven accidents, 32 alarms, six disturbances, one fire, made 11 arrests and 11 protective custody detentions. Other departments were assisted four times, five larcenies were investigated, one vehicle was reported and two stolen vehicles were recovered.

Medical assistance was given, alert neighbors reported seven incidents of suspicious activity, one domestic problem was quieted. Two trespassing complaints, five complaints involving trailbikes three threats and three traffic complaints were logged along with eight incidents of vandalism.

Arrests

Early Wednesday morning Officer Robert Richter arrested Joao M. Texeira of Chapel Street Lowell after a computer check revealed two outstanding warrants issued by Lowell police. He was held for Lowell officers to return him to court.

Thursday morning Officer Steve

Mauriello arrested Gary Waite, 17, of Grand Street, Wilmington after a computer check indicated a default warrant issued by Brookline Court. He was bailed for a Friday appearance in Brookline.

Office Mauriello also arrested Michael Hanlon of Harjean Road, Billerica at the Billerica police station. He was arrested on a Woburn Court default warrant.

Friday morning Insp. John Ritchie arrested a Tewksbury man at Charlestown Court and returned him to Woburn Court. John A. St. Perrie of Livingston Street was picked up on the basis of a default warrant issued by Woburn Court.

The Department of Alcohol

Enforcement Unit officers, on duty in North Wilmington Friday night, made three arrests. Paul Cantwell, 18, of Temple Street, Tewksbury was arrested and charged with possession of alcohol being underage and possession of an altered license. Also arrested was Dana Fama, 17, of Oakdale Road, Wilmington and Robert Meilla, 17 of Sheridan Road. Both were charged with underage possession of alcohol. All three were bailed for a Monday appearance in Woburn Court.

Officer Jim White arrested a local woman after investigating an accident at Glen Road and Jones Avenue early Saturday evening. Rita B. Mallory of Main Street, age 24, was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, having no license in her possession and possession of a class B substance. She was bailed for an appearance in Woburn Court Monday morning.

Saturday morning Officer Steve Mauriello arrested Donald Sleeper, 21, formerly of Wilmington, now living at 203 Kendall St., Tewksbury. Sleeper was arrested on warrants charging him with larceny over $100 and larceny of a motor vehicle. He was additionally charged with default warrants for receiving stolen property and motor vehicle offenses. He was held for the weekend in lieu of bail. Sleeper had recently fled to Florida but returned to this area.

John Dunn of Bancroft Street, Wilmington, age 25 was arrested early Saturday by Officer Jon Shepard after a computer check revealed a default warrant issued by state police Andover barracks.

Tech has 33 superintendent applicants

Thirty-three applicants are currently in the running for the position left vacant by the resignation of former Superintendent/Director Benjamin Wolk. Of those, 17 are from Massachusetts and four are in-house candidates.

All applications were submitted by the October 24 deadline. NESDEC, the consulting firm charged with narrowing down the Superintendent candidates to 10 viable applicants, will bring the successful candidates before the school committee on November 18. At that time, members will hold public interviews.

Church plans 75th anniversary celebration

Bishop George W. Bashore, spiritual leader of United Methodists in New England, will preach at the Tewksbury United Methodist Church, Sunday, November 2 at 10 a.m.

The Tewksbury United Methodist Church is celebrating its 75th anniversary. The church was formed on November 5, 1911.

Taking part in the worship service, along with Bishop Bashore, will be Bishop Jack Tuell of the Los Angeles area. Bishop Tuell was pastor of the Tewksbury United Methodist Church from 1953-55. Bishop Tuell and Bishop Bashore are two of the leading spoke persons for United Methodism.

Since 1980, Bishop Bashore has served as resident bishop of the Boston area, which includes three annual conferences in five of the six New England states. The 600 churches have a combined membership of 124,000.

Ordained in the Evangelical United Brethren Church 10 years before the union of that denomination and The Methodist Church, forming the United Methodist Church, he first served as pastor in Reading, Pennsylvania where, during a 14-year pastorate, he initiated an ecumenical, interracial, inner-city ministry. He served as district superintendent from 1973 to 1979 and then, returning to his birthplace, Lancaster, Pennsylvania, he served as pastor of the First United Methodist Church there for one year before being elected bishop.

Bishop Bashore received a Bachelor of Arts degree cum laude from Princeton University in 1955 and a Master of Divinity degree (1958) and a Doctor of Ministry degree (1976) from United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio. He also holds an honorary doctorate from Albright College.

He was recently elected to a four-year term as president of the General Board of Discipleship of the United Methodist Church. Because of his background and interest in church music, he also serves on the General Conference Hymnal Revision Committee.

To commemorate the founding of the church, the bishops will be driven to United Methodist in a vintage 1911 automobile. The church was founded in 1911, making the choice of autos more significant. The motorcade will leave the Oakdale Mall on Main Street around 9:30 a.m. on Nov. 2, arriving at the church shortly thereafter.

For further information call the Rev. Dr. Stephen T. Melius, 658-5991.

The only Lion in the Vatican

Father Joseph Blaney O.M.I., former pastor of St. William's Church in Tewksbury, has been in Italy for several weeks, and has, as of October 2, made two visits to local Lions Clubs.

He described those visits in a letter to Ray Paquin of Chandler Street, Tewksbury. Ray is the current president of the Tewksbury Lions Club.

To get to the meeting places he rode in crowded buses through Rome. It was a case of speaking in Pigeon English, French and Italian, to find his way through Roman traffic.

To the members of the local Lions Clubs it was quite a surprise, to see a priest of the Roman Catholic Church as a fellow Lion. Priests in Italy never become Lions Club members.

Father Joe, as the Lions and others call him, finished his letter to Ray by saying that he was about to visit the Vatican (on October 2) for a private audience with the Pope.

"I'll probably be the only Lion in the Country of the Vatican!"

Heidi Wiberg, Gary Hastings engaged

Gary Hastings and Heidi Wiberg have recently announced their engagement. Heidi is the daughter of Hugh Wiberg and Dorothy Wiberg of Wilmington and Gary is the son of James and Virginia Hastings, also of Wilmington.

Heidi is a 1985 graduate of the University of New Hampshire where she received a B.S. in business administration. She is currently employed at Avco Systems Texton in Wilmington as a financial analyst.

Gary is a 1984 graduate of the University of New Hampshire where he received a B.S. in math and computer science. He is presently employed by the Mitre Corporation in Bedford as a member of their technical staff.

A fall 1987 wedding is planned.

Wilmington senior topics

Council meets Monday

The November Council on Aging meeting will be held at the Senior Center Monday, November 3, beginning at 1:30 p.m. It is important for all seniors to attend this meeting. The Council on Aging members are appointed by the Board of Selectmen to approve by their vote how the budget is spent to meet the needs of the town elder citizens,--any resident 60 years or older.

Attending the Council on aging meetings is seniors' opportunity to let Council members know that what they are voting for is the best interest in meeting all seniors' needs. The members of the board will work together to see that the desires of a senior is for the best interest of all. Therefore if you have a desire you feel would be good in meeting the needs of seniors, take it to the meeting.

Election Day, Tuesday

Tuesday, November 4 is Election Day. It is a privilege to live in a country where we can cast a vote for the candidate of our choice. Think how we would feel if this privilege were taken away from us, as it is for many people in countries throughout the world. As a senior citizen you are a member of the largest voting group in the country. Let your vote be counted in putting into office candidates who will fight to obtain programs and laws which will protect our rights to meet our needs. Any senior who would like a ride to the polls should call the center - a candidate will receive the message.

Cheese, butter and rice

Also Tuesday, November 4, we will be distributing cheese, butter and rice at the Senior Center from 10 a.m. Proof of participation in SSI, a fuel, food stamps, Medicaid, Welfare or income qualification will be required. Any shutin who qualifies may call the Senior Center and we will see that the commodities are delivered to you.

Holiday dinner-dance

On Monday, November 10, any senior wishing to attend the Tewksbury - Wilmington Elks annual Wilmington senior citizen holiday dinner dance may pick up a ticket at the Center, the tickets are free. The dinner dance will be held at the Elks Hall on South Street, Tewksbury on Thursday, November 13. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. Shutins who wish to attend may call the center, we will see that you receive a ticket.

Fuel assistance

Fuel assistance applications are being made out at the Senior Center on appointment only. If you feel you qualify call the center for an appointment. If you are shut in and can not get to the center call for a home visit. Make sure you have proof of income when you arrive or when I arrive at your home, i.e. a copy of your Social Security and/or pension and SSI checks. Check your oil tanks before coming for your appointment, if it is low fuel can be ordered after the application is completed.

Sign in as you enter

Beginning Monday, November 3, we will be asking all seniors entering the Center to sign in. This is very important so please comply with our request. Please enter the building through the office door. All other doors are for emergency use only.

Edith Cunningham

The HUB Account® tips the scales in your favor...

An innovative investment system of checks and balances.

✓*High Interest Rates and Unlimited Checking

A Hub Account offers you the complete flexibility and ease of four accounts in one. If your balance increases, you do not have to open another account to earn the maximum interest. For example, $0-$1,000 continues to earn the NOW Account rate, while $1,001-$7,500 begins to earn the Super NOW rate. If your balance reaches $15,001, four interest rates are operating to your high interest advantage.

✓*Four Interest Rates at Work in your One Hub Account

COMFED'S HUB ACCOUNT
DEPOSIT LEVELS	INTEREST RATES*
For your first $0 to $1,000	NOW Account Rate
For your next $1,001 to $7,500	SuperNOW Account Rate
For your next $7,501 to $15,000	Money Market Rate
For your next $15,001 to $100,000	18-Month CD Rate

* Rates based on the COMFED index. COMFED reserves the right to alter the interest rate and deposit levels at any time. Notification of rate levels appears on your monthly statements.

✓*Unlimited Checking

What's more, Hub allows you to write as many checks as you want--whenever you want. An unlimited checking account means privilege without restriction.

✓*Instant Liquidity/No Withdrawal Penalties

What many investors like best about a Hub Account is its instant liquidity. You can withdraw funds at any time without penalty. No more nagging fears that you might need cash but can't get it without forfeiting interest.

✓*Plus...Convenience Through Check Safe-keeping

ComFed keeps your checks safe and in order. (Copies for tax or other purposes are available on request.)

✓*100% Federally Insured (FDIC) Up to $100,000.

✓*$10 bonus

✓*Waive First Year Service Fee for a new Hub Account

Women in Business roundtable

The Women in Business Division of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce held its bi-monthly management roundtable at the Chamber office recently.

This month's format differed from the usual roundtable discussion of varied topics and concerns brought forth by members and addressed by the group. The focus of this meeting centered on the new tax laws signed this month by President Reagan.

Linda Emond, C.P.A., a Wilmington accountant and Chamber member presented a table of the current provisions and changes which will go into effect under the new law. She walked the group through the changes answering questions and expanding on the information contained in her outline.

The discussion proved to be both informative and interesting with input from bankers, financial planners, owners and managers in attendance.

Meetings of the Women's Division also offer an opportunity for members to network, with all attending given an opportunity to introduce themselves and describe their business and professional needs. Job opportunities, service and product information and other topics also will be shared.

The next Women in Business meeting will be held at the Royal Dynasty Restaurant on December 2 at noon. As a holiday season program, members Chuck Desmond-Sweetser from Sun Seller, Inc., and Pat Walatt and Monica Downing from the Countryside Shoppee will speak to their peers on "everything you ever wanted to know about holiday plants and flowers."

Cost of the luncheon meeting is $8.00 for members and $10.00 for non-members. Reservations are required and may be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce at 657-7211.

Compugraphic reports revenues down

Compugraphic Corporation recently reported revenues of $84,192,000 and net income of $1,507,000 or 18 cents per share, for the quarter ended October 4, 1986, compared with revenues of $94,027,000 and net income of $4,132,000 or 50 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1985. A regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents was also announced.

For the first nine months of 1986, revenues were $254,137,000, compared with revenues of $306,593,000 for the first nine months of 1985. Net income in the first three quarters of 1986 was $888,000, or 11 cents per share, compared with net income of $17,994,000, or $2.17 per share, in the comparable period of 1985.

Included in the 1985 year-to-date results is an after-tax credit of $1,919,000, or 23 cents per share, related to the sale of two subsidiaries in the second quarter of 1985. Included in the 1986 year-to-date results is an after-tax charge of $1,132,000, or 14 cents per share, related to a patent litigation settlement in the second quarter of 1986.

Carl E. Dantas, Compugraphic president and chief executive officer, said, "Order input in the third quarter was approximately the same as order input in the second quarter of 1986. Year to date, total order input remains below that of the first three quarters of 1985. Based on the current level of incoming orders, we anticipate that revenues and operating income for the fourth quarter of 1986 will be lower than revenues and operating income in the fourth quarter of 1985."

The Compugraphic board of directors voted a regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents per common share payable on November 26, 1986, to stockholders of record on November 6, 1986.

Compugraphic is the world's leading manufacturer of computerized composition and publishing systems. The company markets its hardware and software products to the graphic arts industry as well as to business and other organizations.

"Business Connections" November 6

The Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Northern Middlesex, resumes its monthly "Business Connections" program on Thursday, November 6. The Chambers networking event will be held at the Lowell National Historical and Heritage State Parks Visitors' Center on Market Street in downtown Lowell.

From 5:30 to 7 p.m., the Chambers will afford regional business persons the opportunity to meet in a social atmosphere apart from their hectic work schedules. Hors d'oeuvres will be served and a cash bar is available. Door prizes have been donated by several Chambers members; with the top prize being two tickets to Boston Celtics game, donated by the evening's host, the Bank of Boston.

"Any businessperson who has not yet taken advantage of our Business Connections program should plan to attend on November 6," said Kevin E. Coughlin, president and chief executive officer of the Chambers of Commerce and Industry Northern Middlesex. "An average attendance for our program is 150 and the businesses represented vary in size and type of industry."

The cost of this Chambers program is $5 for members and non-members alike. Attendees are encouraged to take plenty of business cards and promotional materials for display. In order to secure your reservation, send a check payable to the Chambers at 45 Palmer St., Lowell, Massachusetts 01852. For further information, contact the office at (617) 454-5633.

North Wilmington development begins

Land clearing began this week on a new commercial development in North Wilmington. Located behind the North Wilmington parking lot, the development is the work of Steve Lawrenson of Wilmington.

The first phase of the development will consist of two 9000 sq. ft. buildings. Each building will have four stores on the first floor, and four offices on the second. The buildings will be of a Victorian design.

Lawrenson initially purchased a parcel of about ten acres from Robert Pondelli and Jack Comeau of Tewksbury. He rezoned about 3.6 acres in the front portion of the parcel to general business. The parcel is adjacent to the railroad tracks and encompasses some wetlands, with Lubbers Brook nearby.

Lawrenson said that allowing for the wetlands is a major aspect of the job, requiring close cooperation with the Wilmington Conservation Commission. Site work is being designed by Erich Nitzsche of Robert Anderson, Inc. Over 800 feet of marafi fencing has been installed to prevent erosion and silting of the wetlands.

Lawrenson has also purchased a second parcel on the opposite side of Truman Road, a paper street.

As a part of the project, Lawrenson will build Truman Road, which runs through the North Wilmington parking lot.

Marketing plans for the project have not been completed, but the units will be marketed through Forest Conant Realty World.

Program speaker

Kenneth Faulkner of Shawsheen Tech, program speaker, exchanges a quip with Chamber of Commerce President Nick Balog (right).

Chamber of Commerce visits Shawsheen Tech

Members of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce were guests of the Shawsheen Tech School in Billerica on Oct. 23 for a luncheon and talks about the educational and work programs in the school. Shawsheen Tech provides alternative high school studies for five towns, including Tewksbury and Wilmington.

Shawsheen Tech provides a Cooperative Training Program to the seniors in the school, wherein the seniors, during alternative weeks, study in school or work for area firms in on-the-job training in their chosen vocation. Students must have accrued a minimum of two full-time years of shop training, in his or her vocation before being considered for a co-op position, and any student who receives an F in any course will not be considered for co-op until the deficiency is corrected.

Seventy-six graduates of Shawsheen Tech last June are employed by local industries and companies.

Interpersonal Communications Program

The Community Health Education Department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington is pleased to offer a course developed to help you communicate more effectively on the job and in social situations.

The Interpersonal Communications program will emphasize both listening and speaking skills; with the goal of organizing information communicated so individual needs can be met. Active listening and responding skills, non-verbal communication, and communicating in groups will also be discussed.

The course will be taught by Adrienne Dana, M.S., C.C.C., speech pathologist. Ms. Dana, holds a bachelor's degree in speech and theatre and master's degree in speech pathology. Ms. Dana is also a communications professor at Salem State College.

The program will be conducted on Monday evenings, November 3, 10, 17, and 24 from 7 to 9 p.m. Please contact the Community Health Center Department at 657-3910, ext. 567 for registration information.

Spook Walk in Tewksbury

The members of the Pine Acres Campground and members of Tewksbury Youth Center will perform in a Haunting Spook walk in the hall of the Recreation center on Livingston Street, Tewksbury.

The Spook Walk is open to all and will be held the week of Monday, October, 27 through Friday, October, 31 admission is $1.

Wilmington's 18th Annual Horribles Parade

The Parade will form at the Wilmington Police Station at 6:30 p.m., and march down church Street to the Wilmington High School tennis courts where plenty of goodies will be offered! Wilmington's Horribles Parade is free and open to all. Above photo "Smiling Angels" was taken at last years parade.

16th edition of the New England Doll

The miniature model of the Saugus Ironmaster's House at the Saugus Ironworks, a national historical shrine, will be one of numerous attractions at the 16th edition of the New England Doll. Miniature and Doll House Show and sale to be presented Sunday, November 2 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Danversport Yacht Club, 161 Elliott St., Danvers.

Visitors will see lavish displays featuring new and antique dolls, miniatures, doll houses and accessories of every description. Exhibitors will answer questions and offer helpful hints with demonstrations for those planning to make items in miniature.

Millions of Americans have been caught up in collecting dolls, doll houses and miniatures. This is the fastest growing hobby in the United States, having edged out stamp collecting, and is now second only to coin collecting. Over 15 million Americans are engaged in crafting and collecting miniatures, according to Hobby Industry of America.

The show will benefit the Handi-Kids program of Bridgewater, Mass., which provides assistance to hospitals and other agencies by donating funds and equipment. Organized recreational programs give the youngsters social, cultural and educational opportunities. Admission is $ 2.75, children 75¢. For further information: phone 532-0606, or by writing Paul Exhibitions, 4 Longstreet Rd., Peabody Mass. 01960. Directions to reach Danversport Yacht Club: take Route 128 North to Exit 22-East to Route 62.

Free Childcare Workshop

A series of four workshops entitled Caring For Children In Your Home will be at the Lowell Main Library, City Hall On November 3, 10, 17, and 24 at 6:45-8:45 p.m. This free series is co-sponsored by ANSC Childcare Corporation and Childcare Search.

Topics to be covered include age-appropriate activities, discipline, growth & development, communications with parents and business issues. The instructor is Paula Murphy, Director of ANSC Childcare Corporation. She has had over ten years experience with home and center childcare.

Ms. Murphy has presented at local and National Childcare Conferences, taught family daycare courses and is a Validator for the National Association for the Education of Young Children Accreditation Project. For more information call 681-5431.

"Many Cultures day" in Tewksbury

Camp fire will present a free "Many Cultures Day" for Tewksbury children in grades 1-8 on Saturday, November 8 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Loella Dewing School in Tewksbury.

The day will feature "hands-on" workshops with ethnic artists and humanist, including exploration of Irish, Japanese, Black, and Indian cultures and arts.

The day's activities are presented by the Council For Greater Boston Camp Fire, with partial funding from the Tewksbury Arts Council and the Council On the Arts and Humanities, a state agency. The day is free for children and accompanying adults, but tickets are required; there will be no admission at the door. Free tickets are available by writing to: Camp Fire, 380 Green St., Cambridge, Ma 02139.

The workshops are based on Camp Fire's "Many Cultures Make Up Our World" project, designed to increase appreciation, sensitivity, and respect among young people of what is unique and what is universal in cultures around the world. Workshops and participating artist: Mary Donnelly, Irish Culture; De Anna Battle, Art of Black Dance & Music; Moniga Veneziano; Indian: Festival of Light; William Krause, Japanese Origami; and the Folk Arts Center of New England, International Folk Dances.

"As a youth organization, Camp Fire takes a pro-active stance on promoting self-esteem," noted Camp Fire Executive Director Cynthia Beaudoin. "Important part of a positive self-esteem is feeling good about your own ethnic or cultural heritage and to do that, you have to feel good about other people, too. Camp Fire helps kids know that difference among people and cultures can not only be respected and understood but can add enrichment and fun to their lives, too!"

Attendance at the Tewksbury Many Cultures Day is limited and tickets are given out on a first-come, first-served basis. At least one adult must accompany every eight children.

Camp Fire is a not-for-profit youth agency, offering club, camping, and community response programs to boys and girls ages 5-18. For more information contact Irene Egan at 876-9800.

Bright spot
for Wildcats

Once again senior halfback Tom Pote (35) was a bright spot for the Wildcats in Saturday's 28-6 loss to Lawrence Central Catholic. Wilmington looks to crack the win column at Methuen Saturday. Game time is 2 p.m.

No running room for Central

The Wilmington High School defense surrounds a Central running back Saturday. Once again the big play burnt the Wildcats as they went down to their sixth defeat.

Wilmington Youth Soccer

Girls post super record

Girls under 16

With a little more than half the season gone, Wilmington's under-16 youth soccer girls have a fine record of three wins, two losses and one tie. One loss came to a strong Andover team, 5-0, and the other was a heartbreaker to North Andover when they scored the only goal of the game with 15 minutes to play. A shot bounced strangely, eluding the goal keeper and fullbacks.

In the first victory, Wilmington scored a goal in each half and held Lowell scoreless, resulting in a well-earned 2-0 win. The first goal was scored by Erin McKenna on a pass from Lori Cormier.

Wilmington's second goal came as a result of a direct kick when Ellen DeMarco passed to Suzi Walsh, who found the top corner of the net. Denise Cosgrove and Andrea DiLeo were great in goal, saving many Lowell shots. Andrea was extremely busy in her half, since a strong headwind allowed Lowell to keep pressure on her.

The fullback corps was led by strong play from Barbara Langone and Marsie Rega, while the offense was always pressing the attack through the efforts of Karen Lynch, Andrea Ducey, Debbie Dellascio and Julie Callahan.

Wilmington's second win was against Tewksbury. A goal midway in the first half by Karen Lynch, with an assist from Erin McKenna, held up for a 1-0 victory.

The offense was always active because of the steady play of halfbacks, Ellen DeMarco, Maryalyce Burns and Krista Pagliarulo, and forwards Lori Cormier and Jessica Falzone.

The shutout was attributed to great goalkeeping by Denise Cosgrove and the fullback play of Andrea DiLeo, Suzi Walsh and Christine Bonariggo.

The girls played a total team game against Andover II, ending with a 6-0 win. The score was 1-0 at halftime on a goal from Lori Cormier, assisted by Karen Lynch.

In the second half Wilmington really put things together and played the passing game perfectly. At the nine minute mark, Erin McKenna scored with an assist to Krista Pagliarulo. Midway into the half, Andrea Ducey found paydirt from Denise Cosgrove's assist. In the final 10 minutes Erin McKenna scored unassisted, Andrea DiLeo scored from Lori Cormier, and Suzi Walsh capped the scoring with an assist going to Andrea Ducey.

Christine Bonariggo and Denise Cosgrove each played a half as keeper for the combined shutout. They were aided by very strong play from fullbacks Marsie Rega and Barbara Langone.

Wilmington's tie was a hard-fought 1-1 score against North Andover where Wilmington dominated 75 percent of the game but just couldn't get the game winner. The first half ended scoreless even though Wilmington halfbacks Julie Callahan, Karen Lynch and Ellen DeMarco, as well as forwards, Debbie Dellascio and Andrea Ducey, often had scoring opportunities.

North Andover scored early in the second half when a corner kick just fell off the fingertips of Denise Cosgrove; the goalkeeper, and lay on the ground for a few seconds to be driven in.

With 10 minutes to play, Lori Cormier knotted the score on an unassisted goal from a shot that was perfectly placed into the top, far corner.

Fullback play from Denise Cosgrove, Christine Bonariggo, Marsie Rega and Barbara Langone was the reason the offense was able to control the entire game.

This team has played the type of unselfish soccer any coach would be proud of. The girls are constantly exhibiting hard work and sincere dedication to the team. All the parents are truly excited by the great desire and intensity shown by these fine young women.

Booters win three straight

The Wilmington Youth Soccer Associations' boys under 14 Cosmos have won their last three games in Division II of the tough Middlesex Youth Soccer League.

The first win was over

Chelmsford, 5-1. Goals were scored by Kevin Meeker (3) and Bobby Deislinger (2). Stephen Pepe and David Dellascio played well at the forward position for the Cosmos. Halfback J.J. Smith,, playing perhaps his best game of the season, was a major factor for the Cosmos.

The second win was a tight 1-0 win over a stubborn Waltham team. Matt McManus got the game's only goal in the first half, on a great shot from the right side about 25 yards from the goal. Halfbacks Rich Barletta, Eric Creeth, and Victor Pacheco were outstanding. Forward John Ciariamaglia was a growing concern as well, helping to keep constant pressure on the Waltham defense.

The third game was a thrilling 2-0 win over previously unbeaten Reading. The key to this game was the outstanding play of fullbacks Freddie DaMore, Michael Botte, Bobby Surran and Kevin DiGiovanni, along with some great goalkeeping by David DiCenso, who notched his second straight shutout.

Goals were scored by Kevin Meeker and Victor Pacheco, who along with Mike King, had several other good scoring bids.

These three victories up the Cosmos record to five wins and two losses. Their next game is at home Saturday (Nov. 1) against Wakefield. Game time is 12:00 pm at the Glen Road Field.

Tough loss

This past Saturday afternoon, Austin Prep football suffered a tough loss at the hands of the Crusaders of Bishop Fenwick, 20-17, in a Catholic Central League Large School League game. On just the second play from scrimmage, Eric Klien took a pitch from quarterback Shawn MacMillan, and he lofted a scoring strike to fullback Jim DePrizio, the first of three aerial touchdowns for the Peabody based Catholic League power.

After a drive into Crusader territory stalled, Austin Prep's senior place kicker Nick Chringris (Billerica) hit a school record 48 yard field goal, to put Austin on the board, trailing 7-3. Senior tackle Mike Florio (Tewksbury) caused a Fenwick fumble, and Chringris attempted a 39 yard field goal, which just fell under the crossbar.

Kenwick struck for two second period touchdowns, on passes from quarterback MacMillan (senior, Lynnfield), to Eric Klein, and to fellow Townie Darren Soucy, for a 20-3 lead.

TMHS cross country

Long afternoon for TMHS harriers

In cross country, when the opposing team shows up with 50 runners and touting a six and one record, it's almost certain to be a long afternoon. Central Catholic had just such credentials when arriving in Tewksbury last Wednesday afternoon, and indeed the Redmen did suffer a 19-42 defeat. However, almost all the Tewksbury runners improved their times on the home course considerably, showing that when the going got tough the tough got going.

As has been his custom all season, Bob Busch ran a gutsy and intelligent race. His 15:07 time was his best of the year, but it was not quite enough to handle the torrid pace set by Central's Eric Desharnais.

Dave Kelleher, Brian Sturtevant and Jeff Parsons all ran their best times and gave the Tewksbury squad a respectable showing in the varsity race.

In the junior varsity race, several Tewksbury boys showed great promise for the future. Ben Nichols clocked a fine 17:20 effort, which would have placed him well up in the varsity standings.

Tom Hooper's 17:49 would also have done well at the varsity level. Other runners in the junior varsity race who made strong improvements in their times were Bill Erikson, Jim O'Callaghan and Marc Elliott.

There were 21 runners in the freshmen race and Tewksbury's Tim Martin did an outstanding job to finish third. His time of 17:44 for the 2.8 mile course was also varsity quality.

Kevin Kelley, Mike Pifalo, Ben Tyrrell and Dave Conti also ran well in the freshmen race and achieved considerable improvement in their times.

This week the Redmen go up against a tough team from Wilmington. The girls team, which did not have an opponent this week, will also have a good contest against the Wildcats.

After Wilmington, the Tewksbury harriers will have the state meets to look forward to. Both the boys and girls teams have been steadily improving and should do quite well. Individually, Bob Busch is looking forward to finishing in the top 15 as he did last year.

A week ago, at the Catholic

Memorial Meet at Franklin Park, Bob ran an excellent race to place sixth in a field of 150 quality runners.

On the girls' side, Krissie Connor, Paula Torode and Sue McLaughlin have been running well all season and should do well at the States.

TMHS soccer

Redmen roll

The second half started off quickly for the Redmen, as Tim Quinn deposited Mark Paglia's long throw-in into the net to give Tewksbury a 3-2 lead at 1:59. The game became quite open at this point, as both teams had plenty of scoring opportunities. At 23:58, Andover took the lead on a back header from a throw-in that was kicked in the net from a mild scramble to tie the game.

Then the fun began. Andover with less than four minutes to play seemed to have the go-ahead goal when a Tewksbury defender accidentally passed the ball back off goalkeeper Danny Fiore's chest. Just as the ball hit the line, Fiore was able to turn and spring off his knees onto the ball and stop the scoring bid. On the ensuing play, Andover blasted a near post shot off a cross that Fiore dove over from left to right to smother.

Tewksbury regrouped, and almost won the game themselves with less than two minutes to go, when another Marc Paglia long throw-in was whiffed by three open Redmen before the ball was cleared. The game ended with another long throw-in in flight. A 3-3 tie, but excitement plus!

Junior varsity

Tewksbury's junior varsity has improved dramatically since the beginning of the season when they were left without a goalie.

Although they were a decent team, many goals that shouldn't have been going in the net were. Well, enter Peter Carlino and Dave Carroll playing good soccer, with fairly good early stage goalkeeping.

With Peter Carlino in net, the Redmen took it to Wilmington, 5-1, as freshmen Gary Kidder and Greg Basillio notched two goals each. Freshmen Jamie Holden added the other goal, as junior Roy Kinzler, Jr., Brian Anderson, and freshmen Brian Wahl and Brian Cooper received the assists.

Tewksbury took their freshmen and sophomores over to Chelmsford for a game against the Lion freshmen. Jamie Carroll played well in net for Tewksbury. Good games were recorded by Pat Frend, Gary Kidder, Patrick Romano and Chris Sands along with Steve Picano.

Registration is taking place daily in the Recreation office for basketball. Boys and girls ages eight to 15 as of December 31, 1986 are eligible. Cost is $35.00. Deadline for sign-up has been extended to November 7.

Horribles parade

The Wilmington Recreation Department's 18 Annual Horribles Parade will take place Friday evening, October 31.

Costumed creatures of all ages will gather by the police station at 6:30 p.m. and march to the high school tennis courts, where costumes will be judged and ribbons will be awarded to all, and goodies will be distributed. This is a fun, safe way for the youth of Wilmington to celebrate Halloween.

Anyone interested in helping should contact the Recreation Department between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. at 658-4270.

Turkey race

The Wilmington Recreation

Department's annual fundraising road race for the Community Fund will be held Saturday, Nov. 8 at 10:30 a.m. The cost for the five mile race is $4.00. Turkeys and other prizes will be awarded.

To register, call the Recreation office at 658-4270.

Atlantic City

A two day trip to Atlantic City is planned during April vacation by the Wilmington Recreation Department. This overnight junket includes transportation, one night's lodging at the Trump Castle Hotel, a stage and ice show at the Castle, taxes, tips, etc. plus bonuses.

Call the Rec. Department for further information, 658-4270.

Disney World

The Wilmington Recreation Department is planning a family oriented trip to the Magic Kingdom during April school vacation. The package is quite extensive, and the 78 people who traveled with the group last year had a great time.

Call the Recreation office for further information, 658-4270.

This trip is filling up rapidly.

Discounts

Available now, in the Recreation Department, Entertainment '87, a discount book offering fine and casual dining discounts, museum, sports, theatre and other discounts for family fun.

Call the Rec office at 658-4270 for details or stop by between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. to look over this great money saver.

Also available are discount tickets for the Showcase Cinemas in Woburn and Lowell.

Swimming at the Tech

Along with the Red Cross swimming lessons in progress at the Tech pool, the Rec offers a family swim hour from 6 to 7 p.m. on Sunday evenings. There is a small charge for this swim, and no pre-registration is required.

Best game
of season

Wilmington quarterback Dan Woods enjoyed his best game of the season Saturday against Central Catholic, completing 12 of 21 passes for 120 yards and just one interception.

Youth Soccer

Intramural tryouts

Intramural Director Dick Brady wishes to thank all the boys and girls who participated in the Tewksbury Youth Soccer League intramural tryouts. A reminder that these are not tryouts in the strictest sense of the word, but rather they are a rating system designed to equalize, as much as possible, the teams in the intramural leagues.

All the evaluators agreed that the level of skills exhibited by the youngsters was very high. Mr. Brady wishes to thank the coaches who participated in the evaluations: Tony D'Angelo, Jaimie Bannon, Dennis Hogan, Claude Drevet, Joe O'Brien, Bob Joyce, Ed Flanagan, Bob Conte, George McCarthy and Elaine and Jim O'Callaghan.

Also a special thanks to the parents who volunteered to help speed up the registration process. The drafting of the teams will be held in the course of the next month and team members will be notified by their coaches.

Fall soccer program

The Girls' Under 16 Fall Traveling Team is right in the thick of the competition in the Northern Middlesex League. On Oct. 12, the girls lost a heartbreaker to a much more experienced Wilmington team, 1-0 on a late goal scored from a scramble in front of the net.

On Sunday, Oct. 19 the girls traveled to Medford to face an undefeated and untied Medford team. The Tewksbury girls emerged with a 1-1 tie.

Kristen Halloran scored the goal and Jane Carey was excellent in goal. Coach Jim Angelo deservedly credits the entire team with playing fine team soccer.

Wildcat
spirit

The Wilmington Wildcats have managed to maintain some spirit and a sense of improvement in the face of an 0-6 season thus far.

Wilmington Youth Soccer highlights

Boys' under 14

The season is a little more than half gone and the team is getting better and better each week. The boys were placed into a very strong division against teams from towns two to three times larger than Wilmington.

Also, Wilmington is made up of only 12-year-old players, but is holding its' own against the bigger and stronger teams, predominantly made up of 13-year-olds. Despite these strong disadvantages, they have one victory and many other close contests.

The first meeting against Weymouth ended in a 10-0 defeat. The team just lost concentration after playing excellently in the first half, trailing only 3-0. They just pressed too hard attempting to mount an offense.

The team's improvement is evident since the second meeting with Weymouth resulted in a close 4-1 loss. Wilmington was behind 2-0 at halftime because two excellent shots just eluded goalkeeper John Martins. John made many excellent saves in the half.

Weymouth then got an early second half goal. Ten minutes later Wilmington's John Lynch scored an excellent goal from right wing with a great assist going to Greg Maiella.

Wilmington forwards Tom Zaya, Brian Falzone and Anthony Bonariggo with the help of halfbacks Derrick Stokes, Jimmy DeMarco and Tommy Sheehan dominated the remainder of the half.

Wilmington had twice as many scoring chances, but was either turned aside by great saves or had shots just miss the net.

Martins was aided in goal by some tremendous fullback play from Tommy Killilea, John Burke and Chris Armata. The Weymouth coaches praised the Wilmington play and couldn't believe the level of improvement.

Wilmington played a very strong Medford team even for the first half. The score ended 1-1 at halftime when Medford tied the score in the final minute of the half.

Wilmington's goal came at the 30 minute mark, with Greg Maiella hitting the net from a super assist by Gerard Forgett.

Much offensive pressure was provided by forwards Brian McCarthy and Derrick Stokes, as well as halfbacks Stephen Burns and John Lynch.

Medford scored two early second half goals that put Wilmington into a definite hole. Midway into the half Medford scored again, but this did not stop Wilmington from mounting many assaults. At the 25 minute mark of the half Gerard Forgett scored a terrific goal on Tony Bonariggo's assist.

With Wilmington pressing the offense late in the game Medford was able to get a fastbreak goal for the 5-2 final.

The score was by no means an indication of the good game Wilmington played. John Martins was great in goal again and excellent work from fullbacks John Burke, Eric Flynn Chris Armata and Tommy Killilea can't be overlooked.

Burlington came to Wilmington for the fifth game of the season boasting an undefeated season. No one had been able to score more than one goal against them so far. Burlington is an extremely big team, with at least five or six players as big as the Wilmington coaches.

This did not bother the hard work and desire of Wilmington. Burlington pushed across four first half goals. The second half was more to Wilmington's liking. Even though Burlington managed four more goals, Wilmington got two of its' own.

Midway into the half Derrick Stokes broke away for an assisted goal. Later in the half John Lynch was pushed while in the penalty area on a fastbreak. This resulted in a penalty shot. Jimmy DeMarco put the shot into the top right corner.

Burlington knew when the game ended that the Wilmington team had given them a run for their money.

Wilmington has one win and one loss against Melrose. In the first meeting Melrose won, 4-2. Jimmy DeMarco scored in the first half on a corner kick, and in the second half Gerard Forgett headed in a corner kick from DeMarco.

The score was tied 2-2 until Melrose managed two late second half goals, indicating how close Wilmington was to pulling this game out.

Eric Flynn and John Martins shared the goalkeeping duties and played extremely well. They each played great at fullback too, along with Tommy Sheehan, John Burke and Tommy Killilea.

In Melrose's return visit, Wilmington reversed the score, winning, 4-2. Gerard Forgett scored at the 30 second mark of the first half, assisted by the hard working John Lynch.

Melrose tied the score at the midway point of the half. Wilmington then got three second half goals, two from Derrick Stokes and one from John Lynch, to Melrose's one for the 4-2 win.

This game showed how the team has become a solid unit. Some great forward work was turned in by Tommy Zaya, Brian Falzone and Greg Maiello and some really nice halfback efforts were shown by Jimmy DeMarco, Stephen Burns, Chris Armata and Tommy Sheehan.

Once again much credit should be given to fullbacks John Martins, John Burke and Tommy Killilea with a special honor to the fine goalkeeping of Eric Flynn.

The team has had many adversities to overcome thus far, but they have not diminished the constant hard work and desire of all the boys. The coaching staff could not be any prouder than they are over the boys' play. The parents would definitely echo these sentiments.

The following game reports were turned by coaches for Saturday, October 17.

PLANNING BOARD PUBLIC HEARING

In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40A, Section 5, M.G.L., the Planning Board will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, November 18, 1986 at 7:30 P.M. in the Town Hall Auditorium, 121 Glen Road, on certain zoning articles to appear in the Warrant for the Special Town Meeting.

ARTICLE 2: To see if the town will vote to rezone from Residence 60 (R-60) to Residence 20 (R-20) a parcel of land bounded and described as follows:

Easterly along the centerline of Andover Street 600± feet; Southerly by the existing R-20 Zone, and across Andover Street from its centerline, and through land of Donovan 170± feet; Westerly through land of Donovan and by a line 150 feet westerly of and parallel to the westerly side line of Andover Street 30± feet; Southerly by land of Donovan and by land of the Town of Wilmington in three courses, 90±, 449.61 feet and 231.19 feet; Westerly by land of the Town of Wilmington in two courses 223.03 feet, and 246.32 feet; and Northerly by land N/F of Corey and across Andover Street to its centerline in four courses, 128.93 feet, 285.56 feet, 362.64 feet, and 48±;

substantially as shown on a plan entitled "Plan of Land in Wilmington, Mass., Owned by Mark A. and Joan Carroll, Scale 40 feet to an Inch - June 21, 1985, Robert E. Anderson Inc., Reg. Professional Engineer, Professional Land Surveyor, 178 Park Street, P.O. Box 177, North Reading, Mass.", and also shown as parcel 4 on Assessors' Map R-1, part of parcel 9 on Assessors' Map 103, and the westerly half of Andover Street abutting said parcels, consisting of approximately 10.32± acres, or do anything in relation thereto.

ARTICLE 3: To see if the town will vote to amend the Zoning Bylaw and Zoning Map of the Town of Wilmington by voting to rezone from Residential 20 (R-20) to General Business (GB) a parcel of land bounded and described as follows:

Southerly by the General Business zone line that runs through lands of John Sons Realty Trust 300± feet, westerly by the General Business zone line that runs along the easterly side line of Jefferson Road (formerly shown as Truman Road on a plan entitled "Plan of Lots Situated in Wilmington, Mass., Surveyed for John D. Cooke, March 16, 1949, H. Kingman Abbott, Reg. (Continued from front page) years." He said he rejected an offer to play in the Cape Ann League two years ago.

"This whole issue is competition. It isn't winning," Gillis stressed later, explaining that though some of the teams do maintain a winning status, for others it's hard for the athletes to compete "on a winning level."

He said that at a recent meeting with Cape Ann officials, he got the feeling at least 10 league members "would love to have us in the league." Some officials, however, are concerned that Wilmington may dominate the conference because the athletes come from a bigger league.

Gillis admitted there were some drawbacks to the proposed change, namely the traveling distance to such towns as Newburyport and the smaller number of sports offered in the Cape Ann League. Gillis and committee members seemed determined that Wilmington retain its 21 sports programs, even if it means keeping those not covered in the MVC. Gillis also stated he has no intention of dropping the annual Wilmington-Tewksbury Thanksgiving football classic.

A non-binding letter of intent has been sent to the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) in accordance with a ruling that stipulates schools leaving a league must give a year's notice of intent. Gillis agreed to the committee's request that he hold several public meetings with athletes, their parents, and members of the Alumni Association before a final decision is reached.

Reading's Cory Catalfamo rides off with second

By DOUG BOYLE

READING — By showing some independence, a Reading youth has learned the importance of teamwork, family and friends and rode off with three awards from the New England Mini-Cycle Association (NEMA).

Cory Catalfamo, 9, of Reading, took an overall second place in the NEMA tourist trophy class (a combination of flat track and moto-cross competition), third place in the moto-cross, and fourth place in short track (flat track racing).

All this in only his second year of competition with the association. Catalfamo's racing trophies came while riding a modified 50 c.c. bike, however, while doing this he also gained experience for next year by riding a regular 60 c.c. and taking some of the weekly trophies in that class.

Cory is not the only bike rider in the family as his younger brother Darren, 6, started his racing career this year on a mini-bike. Although he did not place in the over-all league championships, the boys' father, Gary Catalfamo, owner of 128 Tire in Reading, reported that Darren took several of the weekly trophies.

As Gary explained it, the membership is a family affair. As there are no tracks closer than Middleboro, the whole family goes on the trips, in their case in a camper they have bought just to accommodate the longer trips, to places such as South Berwick, Me., Loudon, N.H., or Claverack, N.Y., and for the fact that events cover the two-day weekend.

The whole family benefits from the association as well according to Gary, who reports that not only do the youngsters make new friends from all over New England, but the parents become friendly as well.

The major benefit though is that the kids learn how to make decisions on their own as no one can tell them what to do while they are on the track in the competitions, but they also learn the teamwork of keeping the bikes up with the help of their parents, who become a combination coach and mechanic.

Although the participants learn to become independent, they also learn the respect for obeying rules as the association will bar them from racing for infractions of discipline on and off the track.

As the NEMA information brochure notes, "In cycle racing in NEMA, the parent has the opportunity to get started on what may well be the first hobby of his (or her) adult life: maintaining or tuning the youngster's bike, becoming a technique coach, and best of all becoming a member of a small family team in which each member comes to know the other intimately and depends on the other to perform his/her portion of the things necessary to keep the rider competitive."

However, the brochure goes on to state, "What is so special about cycle riding? Well, for openers, the cycle rider (and his parent/partner) must develop some kind of mechanical ability if he/she is to be competitive. Second the cycle rider stands alone among his peers. Both his failures and successes are his — there is no team to share his success with, or hide behind when he fails."

"This loneliness in the close company of fellows tends to build a sense of self-reliance and self-respect as in no other sport. Another lesson perhaps is respect for authority for a valid purpose. These are lessons that are usually learned in adulthood, and often at great expense," the NEMA brochure states.

However, NEMA states that "fun is what it is all about."

As Catalfamo said, the parents have a good time getting to know each other at night in the campgrounds and the kids also have a good time.

He notes however, that the parents keep the rowdiness of the participants down, which is not a hard job because the riders are usually "pretty tired by the end of the day."

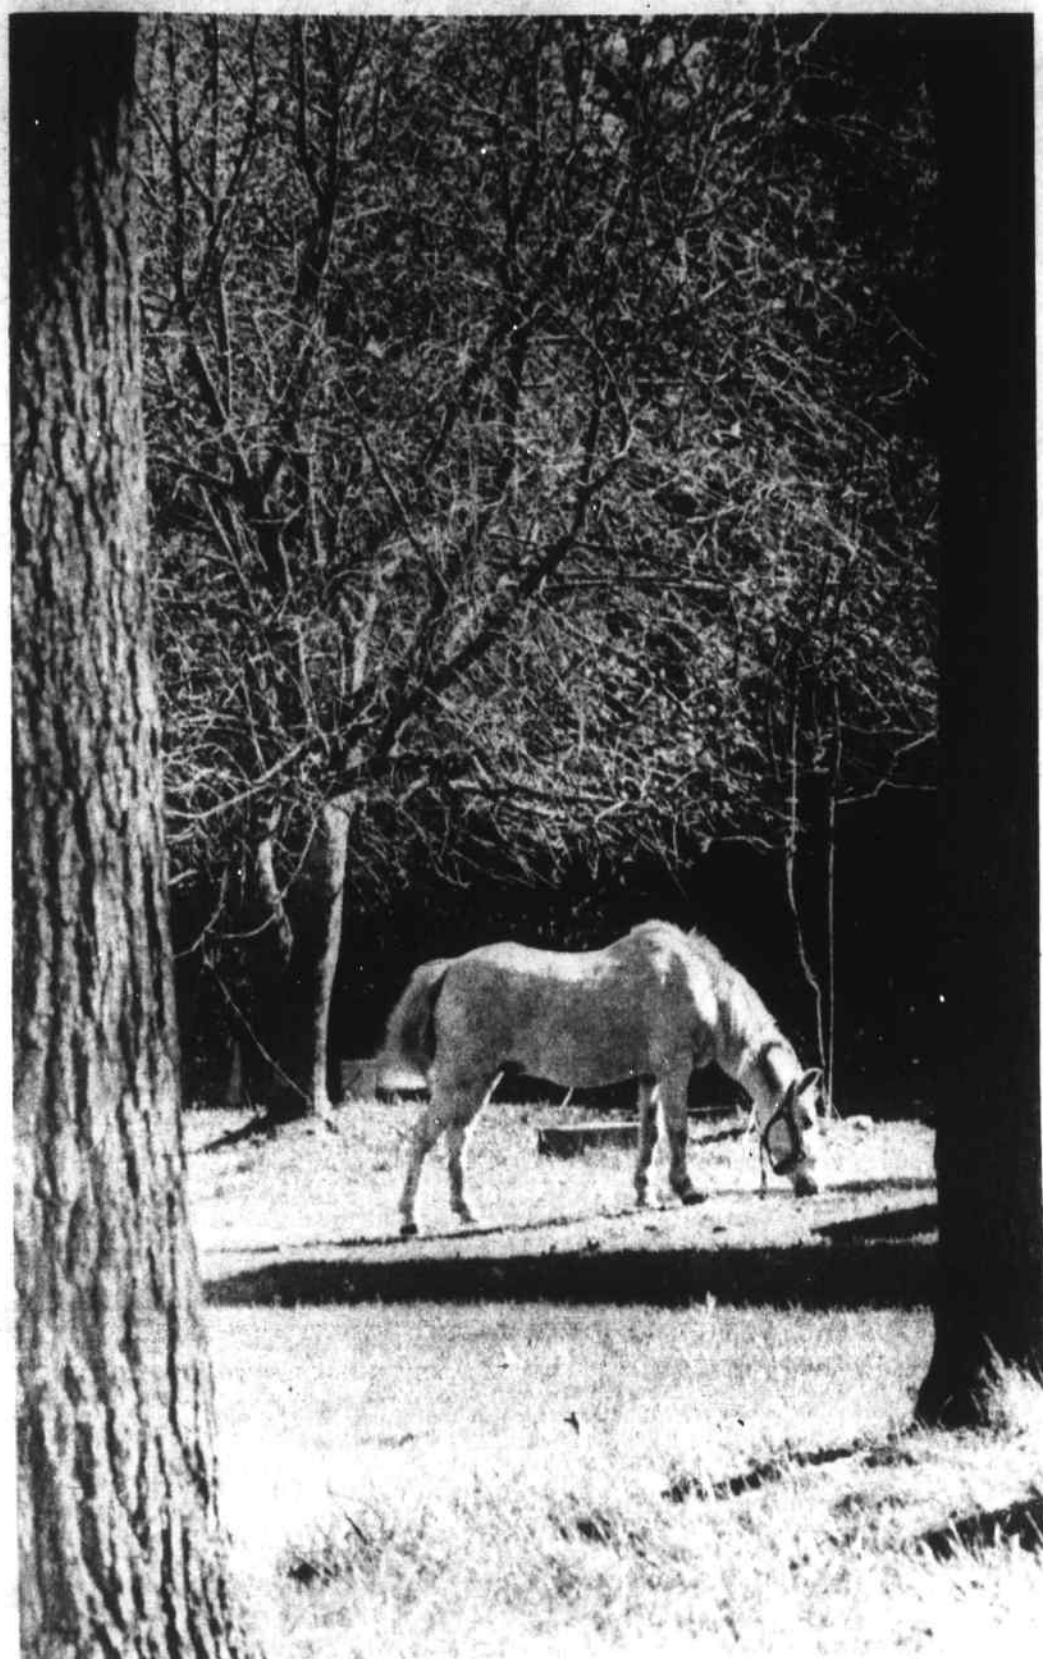

According to Catalfamo, "next to soccer it is the most demanding sport."

Safety is another factor that is taken into consideration by the association and the parents of the participants.

NEMA states that national statistics actually show Motocross racing to be safer than most schoolboy sports such as hockey or football.

NEMA claims to have rigid

Word from the hills

FM TALK: Our frequent breakawayer has returned from the mountains of Vermont with the following thoughts:

WILLY DRINKWATER, that indomitable comedy writer-comedian who once entertained his fans from behind the bar at the 99 Restaurant/Pub, on Mishawum Road, in Woburn, and has lately been heard chattering humorously and incessantly over the Boston airwaves via WBCN, can be heard and seen in person (if you dare subject yourself to whatever surprises this guy always slips out from beneath his sleeves) at Stevie D's, on Rte. 114, in Middleton, this Friday, Halloween night. His show begins at nine p.m., and take it from a guy who's been the brunt of many of Willy's antics, he's worth catching. Willy is particularly high these days, due to the impending arrival of his second child on November 4th. Good luck, old great and good buddy, on both counts.

SPEAKING OF indomitable personalities! In my piece two weeks ago on that local gathering of the former crew members of the USS Maryland, I forgot to mention the oldest member, who is ninety years old. This gentleman, who asked to remain anonymous, wasn't in town just to celebrate this twenty-fifth anniversary get-together. He was also celebrating his first — that's right — first wedding anniversary! He and his bride (he kept referring to her as a child bride — she was about thirty years younger than he) became a constant source of ribbing, because they were continuously disappearing from the gatherings. The group members knew where to locate them, though; they were always locked away in their room and having a good ol' time for themselves. God bless them, I say, and may I be as lucky when I'm his age.

A FEW THOUGHTS on sports: As this column is being written, the Red Sox are heading back to New York for game six — and hopefully the final game (there's nothing like beating the opposition in their own backyard!) — of the '86 World Series. Regardless of how the series goes — and we'll all know by the time this column is published — we've got to be proud of this year's Red Sox team. Like the Celtics and Patriots this year, they have proved they are true champions. And win or lose the series, they've given all of us sports fans some terrific moments, a lot of excitement and a handful of games that are sure to be looked back upon as among the greatest of all time.

I'M NOT, however, as excited or optimistic about the use of instant replay in officiating games. That goes for baseball and football. Baseball's aura of mystique that has made it our official pastime has a definite human quality to it, and adding video instant replay to determine a close call only serves to reduce that human element. That split-second determination whether a man is safe or out as he slides into home plate is part of the challenge that makes this game so great. To mechanize, to perfect that split-second decision making process is to chop away at the mystique and lower the game to just a step above a home video toy. I'd like to see the game remain the simple joy for the boys of summer and all its fans that it is in its present state. Let's leave video equipment for showing re-runs of "The Godfather."

IT WAS nearly one hundred and ten years ago this week that, prior to a game between Boston and Cincinnati, a right-handed pitcher by the name of Tommy Bond and a left-handed pitcher by the name of Bobby Mitchell threw curves around a stake driven into the ground to prove that a curve ball does, indeed, curve.

THERE IS another bit of modernization that I'm not too crazy about. That's adding color to many of the old black and white movie classics. Those distributing the colorized versions say it enhances the appeal of the films, especially for those who have never seen them before. I think it's bunk, and agree with people like John Houseman who say most black and white classics were made in black and white because the studios and directors believed they should be made that way, that they conveyed a particular effect by being shot in black and white. It's one thing to add color to a film like Walt Disney's "The Absent-Minded Professor," which is currently in re-release. It's another to add color to a picture like "Casablanca." Another point in favor of leaving the old classics alone: most were shot with sets, props and clothing that enhanced the black and white film. I can't imagine, say, "Citizen Kane" ever being shown in anything but black and white. Or a film such as "In Cold Blood." Color would absolutely destroy the moodiness created with the black and white images associated with these films.

WILL SOMEBODY please tell me what the purpose is of the latest "fad" that seems to be infecting college-aged kids these days? The fad about which I speak is spitting into another person's mouth. I was recently at Daisy Buchanan's, on Newbury Street, in Boston, and it seemed as though a good number of the patrons were getting their kicks out of spitting a mouthful of beer into a girl friend's or friend's mouth. Inevitably the stream of fluid ended up all over the other person, or worse, all over some innocent bystander. It is a gross scene, and I fail to see the humor in it. What happened to the old days, when I'd go to Daisy's and everybody seemed to exude a tad more class than that?

I DON'T care what the critics are saying about "Blue Velvet." I think it's a terrific film. I also loved Francis Ford Coppola's "Peggy Sue Got Married." I'm

Cosmetic consultant in Andover

The very first impression we give is created by how we appear to other people ... our clothing, our hair, our skin, our makeup. Fortunately, for most of us that impression is generally a positive one. But for many, particularly those with unsightly skin blemishes that go uncovered, the initial impression can be somewhat less than positive — in fact, it can be downright painful. An unfamiliar situation can create tension for the victim of a skin disorder as well as for the people he or she meets for the first time.

For Lydia O'Leary, born a half century ago with a birthmark that covered half her face, her challenge was to create a natural looking makeup that would help her and many men, women and children with similar problems.

After college she came to New York and made the rounds of the big department stores in quest of a job. Her qualifications and intelligence were much above the average, but her facial blemish stood in the way. With bitterness in her heart she realized she could not be employed at any job that involved meeting people. She hid herself away in a back room, making a living by painting place-cards.

One day she was painting an iris on a bridge tally. She got one petal too dark, and touched it up with a lighter shade. The light shade concealed the dark purple perfectly. If only she could "touch up" her birthmark so easily! An idea was born — why not try it? She grabbed the oil paint and covered her birthmark. In the mirror she saw a beautiful, excited girl with no blemish on her face!

The more she thought about concealment for her birthmark the more plausible it seemed. Having studied chemistry in college, she was able to select materials at her corner drugstore for the experiment. Then, with the help of a chemist, she worked for weeks, finally evolving a lotion. Alas, every time she smiled, the lotion cracked. When she made the lotion more pliable, it rubbed away in several hours.

Months passed before she got the exact components of a paste that would stay on for a weekend and still be indistinguishable from skin.

She was elated but didn't keep her discovery to herself. She knew how many others would welcome something to cover facial disfigurements, acne, burns, and scars.

Though it was unheard of to get a patent for anything that smacked of cosmetics back then, Lydia O'Leary got a patent for her discovery and soon "Covermark" was being recommended by doctors at Shriners' Hospital, dermatologists, plastic surgeons, even columnist Ann Landers who has steadfastly refused to endorse products, but considered letting people know about "Covermark" a public service.

Lydia O'Leary died several years ago, but her discovery lives on.

Miss O'Leary has transformed thousands of lives. "Covermark" is effective not merely for covering birthmarks, but for facial and bodily scars resulting from accidents or burns, and for leucoderma, the malady that results in white, depigmented areas on the skin. Scars of that kind often render a person unemployable. Thanks to Miss O'Leary, hundreds of people have been able to take their places in the ranks of industry without hesitation or complexes.

On Thursday and Friday, November 6 and 7, a professional cosmetologist and representative of "Covermark," will be at Andover Medical Supply, The Simeone Prescription Center at 2 Main St. in Andover Center. She will conduct private or group consultations for those interested in this remarkable product. Men and women are welcome. Please call 475-0418 or 475-0693 for more information.

really looking forward to the release of Mel Gilson's latest film, "Lethal Weapon," due out the first of next year. He is a brilliant actor, and I wish he'd appear in more films. The star from Down Under hasn't had many critical successes, but he's overdue. "Lethal Weapon" may be finally the catalyst that gets him out of the Mad Max type-casting and into some more wide range characterizations.

A FEW WORDS about my retreat to the mountains: I returned with an overwhelming desire to go through a few boxes of old photographs. Then I was struck with a sad thought: long after I am dead, somebody — perhaps a child or a grandchild, or maybe even a distant relative of a friend — might pick up those boxes of old photographs, open them, look at the pictures, and say something like, "Hey, Mom, who are these people in these old photos? I don't recognize any of them. I can't even recognize where they were taken. There are tons of them, Mom. What should I do with them?" And this child's mother will say, "Throw them out." I can't bear to see that happen to my collection of memories. So I spared myself of that ever-growing fear, and I burned them myself.

LOOKING FOR a good book to read this weekend? I've got a couple of great suggestions for you, particularly if, like me, you enjoy good mystery and crime novels. "Profit and Sheen," by James Colbert, which has just been published by Houghton-Mifflin; and Jack Livingston's latest, "The Nightmare File," just released by St. Martin's. The New Yorker gave both outstanding reviews.

"The rat stops gnawing in the wood, the dungeon walls withdraw, the weight is lifted. Your pulse steadies and the sun has found your heart. The day was not bad, the season has not been bad, and there is a sense and even promise in going on."

— Bernard DeVoto. The aforementioned quotation is intended for someone who used to be very special in my life. To the rest of you, please make it a good week, and I'll catch you on the flipper.

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Most women are like pianos, "upright," "polished," and "grand." They also have "charity," without questions and compassion without reservations. Some of the many I know are, Janet Craven R.N., Henrietta Tuttle of Wilmington, Diane Higden of Burlington, Marie Marino of Stoneham, Connie Johnson of Wakefield, Cecelia Vigelante of Lynnfield, Margilynn Stratton of North Reading, Ruth Harrington of Reading, Suzie (Arlen) Johnson of Tewksbury, Gail O'Malley of Winchester, Nancy Murphy of Woburn and many more.

Folks, God can do wonders with a broken heart if you give Him all the pieces. My wife Kathy gave this advice to the Winchester Women's Garden Club, "The secret for a happy marriage is never go to bed mad — stay up and fight!" She has a very dangerous and disturbing habit of rearranging the furniture at least once a month. I got up at 5 a.m. to go to work and I nearly fell out of my second story bedroom window. I had forgotten that she had picked that particular room and had pushed the bed against the window wall.

Even my pet parrot is squawking saying to me, "Hey, fatso, if my perch is moved one more time I'm flying out of this 'cuckoo nest,' and I ain't coming back!" "If you go Polly," I said, "please take me with you." "You can't come — idiots don't fly," I wonder how "Parrot Soup" tastes?

We went to Disney World last summer and Kathy had to tell the pilot that it was her first air flight and to please take it easy and be careful. "I have to," he said, "it's my first flight, too." While airborne the pilot walked into the passenger section and Kathy nearly fainted. "Good grief," she shouted, "Who is flying the plane?" The pilot smiled and said, "The plane is having a little trouble so the stewardess took over the controls, but I suggest everyone pray." Two men said, "We don't know how to pray." "Then do something religious." So, they started a Bingo game.

I want to thank Frank Mazzone for picking up and delivering to me a beautiful plaque that Frank Tuttle from Wilmington spent 40 hours hand carving for me. It's a replica of the Woodchips logo with axe and chips that's on the top of this column. All this because Mr. Frank Tuttle loves Woodchips. Frank is a retired Avco engineer and his pal is Ed Sargent, a fan of Woodchips. I love to take Kathy out for dinner. I embarrassed her last night when looking at the menu. I told the waitress, "I'll have some Spumoni Vermitelli, please." "Where do you see that?" she asked. "Right here, it's on the menu." "Oh!" she exclaimed, "that's the name of the owner of this restaurant!"

Rowan Fitzgerald walked in, hung up his coat and hung a sign on it that said, "This coat belongs to a champion fighter — I'll be back!" Later when he went to get his coat, there was a note there instead saying, "Your coat was taken by a champion sprinter and I WON'T be back!" In one restaurant I told the waiter, "You served me twice as much yesterday." "Where were you sitting?" "Over there by the window." "Oh," he said, "that explains it, we do that for advertising purposes."

Runners, joggers and walkers know by their pulse rate the general condition of their bodies. I take one day to walk the bounds of the cities and towns of the Middlesex East area each month. I ask people if they like Woodchips. Some say they love it, some say that it makes a wonderful mulch and others never heard of it. I make 100 copies of the column and give them to people hoping to make them new readers. These are some of the many people I interviewed: Sal Mercurio, a Local 33 carpenter said, "You can't please everybody." Some members want to 'hammer' out a wage increase. Sal is 'chairman of the board' and tries to solve some of the 'knotty' problems that come up by those forming a 'splinter' group. Kevin O'Hara, a firefighter, said his mother

Mary loves Woodchips, but would like to have me 'tone' down a bit what I say about my wife Kathy. I'll try, Mary. Bill Clark, retired Air Force sergeant, said, "Your parents must have been weight lifters — they sure raised a 'dumb-bell.'"

Tommy Cook, show business manager, "After reading your column I would like to put you on the stage — the first one out

JAZZ CONCERT

Come to the Regattabar, at the Charles Hotel, Harvard Square, Cambridge, on Sunday, Nov. 23, for an evening of jazz benefiting CARE's international aid and development projects in Africa.

There will be two benefit concerts, 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Come for one, or both. The Joe Parillo Ensemble, a popular New England jazz group, will be playing original compositions.

The Joe Parillo Ensemble is one of the New Age jazz groups whose ranks include the Pat Metheny Group, Windham Hill Artists, and Paul Winter Consort.

The Charles Hotel is donating use of the Regattabar on Nov. 23 and the Joe Parillo Ensemble is playing for free, so all ticket proceeds will go to benefit CARE's irrigation projects and provide health education in Sierra Leone, Africa.

Tickets are $8 per person per show, or $12 for a ticket to both shows. For reservations mail your name and check payable to CARE, 581 Boylston Street, Boston, Ma. 02116 and tickets will be held in your name at the door. Or buy your ticket at the door the evening of the concert. Group rates are available. All ticket payments are tax deductible.

GABY CORBERT (left) and Magge Wade are the friendly shopkeepers at "The Ugly Duckling" which features antique pieces that span 200 years.

Ugly Duckling hatches in Reading

Do you know the story of The Ugly Duckling? Well, the shop at 1321 Main Street in Reading is the story. The old and much-used pieces of the past, once thought "ugly," have with time become the cherished remnants of our history and as such are now like beautiful swans — desirable.

The shopkeepers, Gaby Corbert and Magge Wade, have lovingly recreated an earlier time through their country store atmosphere.

The antiques that span almost 200 years are from all parts of our country, and dotted throughout are cards and pictures giving their description and use, becoming a mini-history lesson.

Off to one side is a small courtyard art gallery featuring creations on hand and samples from which to custom order. Jack Vasapoli, a local sculptor who works in bronze, and Richard Landry, a New England wood carver who has won international competitions, share the area with Peter Happny, a well-known blacksmith whose work is used on Strawberry Banke restoration projects.

Persistent in their attention to detail, Gaby and Magge have done an early store area around their antique cash register, where cranberry honey gleams in jars. Ed Broff, a local beekeeper, provides the honey, as well as the beeswax for the hand-rolled candles. Also enticing are the jellies and preserves put up from the fruits growing right outside the door of Andrew Hancock in Woodstock, Connecticut. Another local New Englander, Johanna Erickson, weaves wonderful floor coverings of chintz and will weave to suit.

The shop also offers local Historical Society publications as well as a select group of books with a New England focus.

The shopkeepers celebrated their opening recently by inviting people to step back in time with them. Friends, costumed by Gerrold DeCarlo, came as Ben Franklin, George and Martha Washington, Betsy Ross, Davey Crockett and a gathering of townsfolk, partook of the laden harvest table.

Essex offers ski trip

As part of its Outdoor Adventures Program, Northern Essex Community College is offering "Ski Norway '87", a ski vacation the week of Feb. 14-22. In winter, the whole country of Norway is a vast ski area where the snow is always "dependable."

The tour will begin with three nights in Oslo, which may properly be called the ski capital of Europe. Not only does it host the world-famous Holmenkollen Ski Festival, but it offers cross-country or cross-city skiing, with 2,200 kilometers of well-marked trails through variety of terrain. There's night-time skiing as well, along with 54 well-lit trails. Lodging in Oslo will be at the Holmenkollen Park Hotel, the city's newest, with private baths, indoor pool and health facilities, gourmet dining, and night clubs. The hotel is only 15 minutes away from the center of Oslo via the free hotel shuttle bus.

At mid-week, the tour will transfer via motor-coach or rail to Lillehammer, a quaint village near Lake Mjosa about three hours north of Oslo, which is also a first-class ski resort. Lillehammer is ideally suited for every type of skier, with 250 miles of cross-country trails and seven ski lifts nearby. The Oppland Hotel is a typical Norwegian first-class hotel, just five minutes on foot from the center of the village. All types of winter sports are available.

Both beginning and advanced skiers are welcome. Lessons will be available from John Halloran, NECC's Trip Leader.

Approximate cost is $1,200, which includes round-trip airfare from Boston to Oslo on Scandinavian Airlines, lodging for seven nights (double-occupancy), daily breakfasts, dinners in Lillehammer only, and transfers. Not included are ski passes and equipment rental. Lift tickets are approximately $8 per day, and equipment rental is approximately $20 per week for cross-country and $40 for downhill. Or carry your skis with you.

Space is limited to 16. For more information, come to an informal meeting at the college to discuss this trip on Wednesday, Nov. 5, at 7 p.m. in Room B310 of the Applied Science Building. Or call Nancy Brown, Trip Coordinator, in the Continuing Education and Community Services Office, (617) 374-3800.

Retired Men's Club discusses charities, meets again Nov. 12

Members and guests of the Retired Men's Club of Wakefield were treated to a very interesting and deeply moving presentation on Oct. 22 by Dr. Jordan Kassalow, president of the Volunteer Optometric Services to Humanity (VOSH). For years the RMCW has been one of the leading contributors of used eyeglasses to this organization, which in turn distributes them to needy persons throughout the world, wherever such services are not otherwise available. The New England College of Optometry Chapter makes visits twice a year to remote areas of Mexico where 6000 pairs of used glasses are matched to the prescription needs of the populace.

In many instances, this occasion represents the first time a child has been able to read his or her textbooks at school or that an older person has been able to see with anything approaching correct vision. The interesting talk and slide presentation showed people (including elderly) who had been standing in line for eight to ten hours, so anxious were they to be able to see. The project is made possible through the donated time and effort of local optometrists as well as students from the college. Cash donations help to defray student expenses, where the receive valuable hands-on professional training in optometry. Dr. Kassalow's appearance was made through the courtesy of Dr. Forrest Seavey, a Wakefield optometrist.

If you have old glasses around the house, please don't throw them away; give them to a member of the Retired Men's Club to bring to a meeting where they will in turn be passed on the VOSH.

The club also collects food labels to help the Beverly School for the Blind.

The annual Ladies Day luncheon was held at 1 p.m. where the members and wives were entertained by a talk and slide presentation by Mr. Peter McCauley, who has made a hobby of Revere Beach and has a collection of over 1500 slides.

During the business part of the regular meeting, the members observed a moment of silence in memory of Carl Bjorkland (1899-1986) and Walter Cole (1906-1986). Attendance at the meeting was 249. Door prizes were won by Clifford Hanson and Jim Bowman. The following visitors were welcomed: Peter J. Pacino of Arlington, Larry Doucette of Wilmington, James I. Standish and Clifford A. Velten of Stoneham, Ken Humphrey and W. Ray Shiner of Wakefield, and George W. Muise and John Storti of Reading. New members are Alfred R. Mancinelli of Lynn, Bert Paglia and Michael J. Maselli of Stoneham, Antonio Busquets of North Reading and Edwin H. McCall of Wakefield.

The Camera Club will meet Nov. 4 at 9 a.m. when they will have an interesting presentation on motor and railroad equipment; the last meeting was an exciting slide show on Japan. The group just received a gift of one of the original polaroid cameras. The Bowling Club, which meets on Mondays and Thursdays at 1 p.m. at the Bowladrome in Wakefield, reported a number of new members. They can accommodate more, however, as two lanes assigned to the club are not filled. The Stamp Club will meet Oct. 28 at 1:30 p.m. at the Wakefield Library. The Travel Club has a few openings left for its Bermuda trip on Nov.

13 and the New York City trip in December.

The next regular meeting will be held Nov. 12 at the First Parish Congregational Church in Wakefield, as usual. The speaker, returning by popular demand, will be Ms. Charlotte Thompson, head of adult services for the Lucius Beebe Memorial Library. This program will carry the theme of Veterans Day and she will review books about the war in Viet Nam. This promises to be another interesting meeting. All retired men in the greater Wakefield area are invited to visit and join this 700-member organization of active retired men. Coffee and donuts are served at 9 a.m. and the program begins at 9:30 a.m. If you are not already a member, come on over on Nov. 12 and meet your fellow retired neighbors.

Swimmer boosts C.P. program

Jack Starett of Rockport, who won fame in 1984 by swimming the English Channel despite having been born with Cerebral Palsy, visited the new Swim Program, primarily for disabled, at the N.E. Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn, and gave tremendous encouragement to the participants.

Standing in the heated pool, Starett told members of the class, "If it wasn't for swimming I might never have walked because my legs would never have been strong enough."

Gwendolyn McDonald of Wakefield, one of the three leaders of the class, who has worked with Starett on several projects, paid a high tribute to Starett for his support. "Jack is always ready to help swimming programs for disabled and he is truly one of our swimming heroes," she said.

The unique eight-week class is designed to help persons with brain injuries, spinal cord difficulties, arthritis, strokes, and other ailments.

The classes, which meet on eight Saturdays in the large 94-degree pool, have a capacity enrollment but applications for the next eight-week program are being received. There are now seventeen on the waiting list.

Other pool leaders are Jeanne O'Neil of Amesbury and Mary Brennan of Lexington.

Ms. McDonald is a skilled scuba diver instructor and has expertise with paraplegics and quadriplegics.

Surface water is plentiful, but in wrong places

Surface waters in Massachusetts are relatively plentiful, but are not distributed where they are needed. More than 75 percent of the population resides in the eastern one-third of the state, but most sites suitable for additional reservoirs are in the western two-thirds of the state, according to the Massachusetts section of the 1985 National Water Summary by the U.S.

Geological Survey, Department of the Interior.

The 1985 National Water Summary is the third in an annual series of comprehensive reports of the status and supply of the nation's vital water resources. It provides an extensive state-by-state look at the country's surface-water resources, which provide about 80 percent of the daily water needs of the United States.

"Surface water is the major source of supply of all major urban areas in Massachusetts," said Michael H. Frimpter, chief Massachusetts Office, USGS Water Resources Division, Boston, Mass., "...because no other source is capable of meeting the large demands of these areas."

"Those large demands are a statewide concern in carefully managing Massachusetts' available surface-water resources," Frimpter said. "The Metropolitan District Commission, for example, which supplies communities in the greater Boston area with 320 million gallons per day of water — about half of the state usage of surface water, estimates that an additional 60 million gallons per day would be needed by 1990. The addition of other communities to the system would further increase demand, and during long dry periods, even the reserves of the MDC system could be seriously depleted."

Water-resources planning and management policies are determined by the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and the Massachusetts Water Resources Commission, comprised of various state agencies and public members.

The Division of Water Pollution Control regulates surface- and ground-water discharges to meet and maintain state water-quality standards. The Division of Water Supply regulates surface- and ground-water withdrawals to ensure water in the interest of public health.

To provide fundamental hydrologic measurements in support of state agency responsibilities, the USGS operates a network of 75 stream-gauging stations in cooperation with several state and federal agencies.

Single copies of the Massachusetts section of the 1985 National Water Summary are available from the Massachusetts Office, U.S. Geological Survey, Suite 1001, 150 Causeway St., Boston, MA. 02114-1384.

The state section contains maps and graphs that portray runoff and precipitation; the location of principal rivers, reservoirs and hydropower plants; trends in average streamflow discharge; how surface-water resources are managed and a table on surface-water use.

Copies of the 506-page 1985 National Water Summary, including all state sections plus an overview of hydrologic conditions for the 1985 water year and articles on record-high levels of the Great Lakes, the disintegration of Columbia Glacier, snow and ice and their effects on climate, and transferring water to meet water needs, among others, are available for $31 each. Orders must include check or money order payable to Department of the Interior-USGS and should be directed to: U.S. Geological Survey, Books and Open-File Reports, Federal Center, Bldg. 41, Box 25425, Denver, Co. 80225.

Selected Massachusetts surface-water facts from the 1985 National Water Summary compiled by the USGS in cooperation with state and local agencies:

Two-thirds of the people in Massachusetts depend on surface water — about 610 million gallons per day of surface water is drawn from lakes, rivers and reservoirs for public supply. An additional 1,500 million gallons per day is withdrawn for industrial purposes.

CORY CATALFAMO showing his champion form on a 60 c.c. minibike. After a season of successful racing this year, he will move up to a 60 c.c. bike with a shift and clutch next year.

Reading's Catalfamo

safety standards that are strictly enforced, and cover a gamut of areas such as the track conditions under which races can be run, physical condition of the rider and bike, and safety clothing. Knowing that no sport can be injury free, NEMA has in attendance at every one of its events four EMT's with experience in treating cycle related injuries. Two ambulances are also in attendance at the events.

The safety factor according to Catalfamo is also carried back to the home front as he reports that neither of his children even practice on their bikes without donning full racing gear.

He notes that this is a good way to tell the organizations' members from kids just buzzing through local woodlands or parks that may have no concern for their surroundings.

The classes that the racers compete in are broken down to age and cycle size as well as further being broken down to experience, such as novice, amateur, and expert.

These classes are mini-bikes, through nine-years old, 0-65 c.c., through 11-years old, 0-85 c.c., through 11-years old, 0-85 c.c., from 12 through 13-years of age, 0-85 c.c., from 14 through 16-years of age, 0-105 c.c. open, through 16-years old, 125 c.c., through high school ages, and 125 c.c. open, through high school ages.

For more information on NEMA contact the group by writing NEMA, 3 Lone Star Drive, Nashua, N.H., 03062, or call (603) 888-2750.

The racing season extends every weekend from April to September.

ON YOUR FEET INGROWN TOENAILS

Ingrown toenails are one of the most common complaints that cause people to seek the attention of a podiatrist.

This disorder is usually caused by inherited abnormal curvature along the sides of the toenail, thickening of the nails as seen with a fungal toenail infection; and is aggravated by shoe gear. Rarely it may be caused by a bone spur pressing on the underside of the nail.

Following a thorough examination we will discuss our findings and treatment modalities. Correction is usually aimed at removal of the offending portion of nail and eliminating any infection that may be present. These procedures are done in the office operating under safe local anesthesia. New techniques allow faster recovery and earlier return to normal daily activities with minimal post operative discomfort. It is important to remember that people with impaired circulation to the feet and lower legs are more prone to infections caused by ingrown toenails. These people should seek prompt treatment for their foot problems. Periodic foot examinations are recommended to help prevent any future foot problems.

Soul Man

Short Takes

Soul Man Starring C. Thomas Howell, Rae Dawn Chong, Ayre Gross, James Earl Jones. Directed by Steve Miner. Written by Carol Black. Rated PG-13 (profanity).

One would think that actors had long ago put away their blackface make-up and curly wigs. But, just when you thought it was safe to go to the movies again, along comes another flick that manages to be offensive and dull at the same time. Only instead of sexism or brutality, the filmmakers have chosen racism as their object of ridicule.

C. Thomas Howell disguises himself as a black man in order to win a minority scholarship when his dippy parents refuse to pay his way to Harvard Law School. This is a premise which had great potential that was never realized, mostly because writer Carol Black went for the cheap shots instead of the rich irony this plot could have provided. Also, Howell was not the actor for this role, as he could not adapt to the identity change. Instead, he and director Steve Miner rely heavily on sophomoric jokes and silly pranks. The worst of which has Howell impersonating a Stevie Wonder who is not only blind, but deaf as well.

Another problem is that the film reduces racial problems to a few black and white situations and assumes that because Howell has dyed his skin an odd color brown he can understand the problems and the culture associated with that pigment.

However, there are some good points to this flick, and chief among them is Ayre Gross as Howell's sidekick. Gross gives the best performance in the movie by fleshing-out his bit part with a depth Howell's leading performance lacked. There is also a very funny bit in which a screwy white co-ed takes Howell home to her ritzy, bigoted family and we are shown their impressions of her black boyfriend, but there just aren't enough of these moments and too many insensitive ones. Soul Man is one movie that could have used more heart.

Short Takes

Trick or Treat is a teenage boy's heavy metal fantasy come to life. Unfortunately, it is about as bland and frightening as a Disney movie-of-the-week. The only interesting bit in this tired story of satanism and demonic musical messages is that Ozzy Osbourne plays a Moral Majority preacher against rock music. Rated R. *

The Color of Money is a masterpiece in characterization by director Martin Scorsese. Paul Newman gives his most brilliant performance to date as the worldly Fast Eddie Felson, a role he originated in The Hustler. Tom Cruise is equally dynamic as a swaggering hot shot in one of the finest movies of the year. Rated R. ***

'Round Midnight is an adoring, if slow moving, look at expatriate black jazz musicians in Paris during the 1950s. Director Bertrand Tavernier brings us right into the golden age of jazz with its smoky rooms and soulful music. Musician Dexter Gordon walks away with the film as the self-destructive sax player. Rated R. ** 1/2

That's Life is an amusing, often poignant look at mortality through director Blake Edwards' eyes. Characterization is more important than storyline, and the unquestionable star of the film is Blake's wife, Julie Andrews, who gives an economical, un-wavering performance as the long suffering wife of an anxiety-ridden hypochondriac. Rated PG-13. ***

Peggy Sue Got Married gives Kathleen Turner a chance to come to grips with her past when she travels back in time to her senior year in high school. This is the kind of touching, original, artistic creation that comes along once in a generation, and shouldn't be missed. Rated PG-13. ***

Jumpin' Jack Flash is a fast-moving, raucous, silly film that will lift your spirits if you can overlook the plot flaws. However, Whoopie Goldberg is more interesting, and entertaining, than the wild storyline, which involves the CIA, KGB and British Intelligence. Rated R. ** 1/2

Deadly Friend is the movie that may destroy Wes Craven's reputation as a scaremaster, as this flick about a teen who reanimates his dead girlfriend is more laughable than scary. Rated R. * 1/2

The Girl in the Picture is a charming import from Scotland that captures some of the rigors of dating in a low key manner. This little film looks at the comic misadventures of a Glasgow youth as he tries to pursue both a swinging bachelor's life and his heart's desire. Rated PG-13. ***

'night, Mother is a well-acted, down-beat showcase for Sissy Spacek's talents as a woman who spends an entire evening explaining her suicidal intentions to her mother. Rated PG-13. ***

Playing for Keeps may have scantily clad girls and a loud sound track, but it misses out on the one golden rule of exploitation films, it doesn't keep the action going. Of course, a believable plot, talented actors and decent production values would have helped this story of teenagers trying to pen a rock 'n' roll hotel. Rated PG-13. *

Tough Guys may have a strong cast with Burt Lancaster and Kirk Douglas, but it wimps out with a spineless script. The two veteran actors play aged convicts released into a world they are ill equipped to handle. Instead of relying on intellectual humor, the script deteriorates into silly sight gags and a preposterous ending. Rated PG. ** 1/2

Half Moon Street is an in-somniac's delight. Fifteen minutes into this snoozer concerning a politician and intellectual-turned-call-girl, you'll be as sound asleep as the scriptwriters who penned this turkey about a political assassination. Rated R. * 1/2

Crocodile Dundee is the movie to look to if you're in need of a little action, adventure and romance to spark up your life. A light-hearted movie about an Australian legend who visits America for the first time, it is Paul Hogan as the crocodile man who is a real stand-out in this flick, thanks to his comedic timing and tough guy veneer. Rated PG-13. ***

Blue Velvet is the kind of movie people are either going to love or hate. There can't be a middle ground because this story of a boy's first encounter with evil as he rescues a damsel in distress is just too strange to appeal to middle America. A perverse sense of humor will help you sit through this one comfortably. Rated R. ***

The Name of the Rose is a truly off-beat film in which Sean Connery plays a sleuth in a medieval monastery. This film is a visual wonder that assumes the audience is intelligent enough to understand three-syllable words, and it will keep you guessing whodunit while proving that the Middle Ages was no bowl of cherries. Rated R. ***

The Boy Who Could Fly is a charming fantasy the likes of which the American film industry rarely produces. This disarming film about a teenager's secret world is told without a lot of glitz and with the most completely realistic special effects you've ever seen. Rated PG. *** 1/2

Eight Million Ways to Die has more cocaine, blue language and bloodletting than has been seen since Scarface was remade. However, Jeff Bridges and Roseanna Arquette bring a depth and humor to their characters that helps to override the convoluted script. Rated R. ** 1/2

The Fly is a gross-out scarefest laced with tragic overtones and may well be the quintessential horror flick of all times. Jeff Goldblum, in his finest performance to date, plays a scientist who manages to get mixed up, literally, with a fly, and the results are not for the faint of heart. Rated R. ***

Stand By Me is a nostalgic film about the growing pains and rituals of four pre-teen boys that was lovingly directed by Rob Reiner. This sensitive, funny flick about one last adventure before entering junior high is surprisingly based on a Stephen King novella. Rated R. ***

Children's Hospital information

TREAT CHILDREN TO A SAFE HALLOWEEN - Halloween's dangers often go hand-in-hand with its delights, according to Lewis First, M.D., associate director of Emergency Services. "Nighttime, dark costumes, and road traffic are an all too common combination on Halloween that can lead to accidents," he says. Dr. First's suggestions for making this Halloween a safe and happy one include: putting strips of reflective tape on the front and back of costumes to make them more visible to drivers; making sure costumes do not drag on the sidewalk causing children to trip; using a non-toxic makeup instead of masks, which may obstruct a child's field of vision and breathing; giving children smaller treat bags that fill up quickly to limit the distance that can be traveled; instructing children to go only to familiar homes where an outdoor light is on; and reducing the danger of burns by placing pumpkins in an elevated position where children's costumes cannot touch them.

NEW SURGICAL TECHNIQUE BRIGHTENS OUTLOOK FOR SCOLIOSIS PATIENTS - Ten years ago, the postoperative course for scoliosis surgery included two weeks of immobilization, followed by six months in an upper body cast or brace. Now, a new surgical technique enables most patients to get out of bed the day after surgery and to recuperate without wearing a cast or brace. "Eliminating the need to wear a brace after the operation is an important advance for scoliosis patients, many of whom have already spent years wearing one," says John Hall, M.D., orthopaedic surgeon-in-chief. The new technique is based on the traditional operative procedure with modifications that allow a more stable outcome.

"REDISCOVERED" DRUG IMPROVES OUTLOOK FOR CHILDHOOD LEUKEMIA - Children's physicians report that an existing drug, which had once been dismissed for ineffectiveness in the treatment of leukemia, can substantially improve survival rates when used intensively in young patients. The "rediscovered" drug - asparaginase - works by removing the serum protein asparagine, which is necessary to feed leukemia cells. "For patients receiving the drug in combination with other chemotherapeutic agents, survival rates of up to 86 percent are achieved," says Stephen Sallan, M.D., senior associate in Hematology and Oncology.

Second thoughts on cataract treatment

Our eyes depend on several parts to see well. The cornea, the clear window in the white of the eye, passes light inside to the lens. The healthy lens is a clear living focusing system that makes a picture on the retina. The retina is like the photographic film for the eye. If an image comes through both cornea and lens it makes a picture on the retina. If all parts of the system are healthy and working together as a team we "see." If one part of the team isn't working, we don't see well. When we don't see well, the eye needs to be examined as a system. Checking the glasses is just the beginning. The internal parts should be checked for disease and the problem area identified. One treatable form of eye disease we hear about often is cataract. This is a clouding of the normally clear lens of the eye.

There are many different kinds of cataracts. They can be caused by injuries, infections, hereditary conditions, diseases like diabetes, certain medicines like steroids, and other causes. They are not due to cancer and they don't cause permanent blindness.

Not all cataracts require surgery. Some types of cataracts progress extremely slowly or not at all. At some point the cataract may make vision "too" cloudy. When a person is limited by clouded sight, it is time to discuss what can be done to help. Surgery is only one of many options. It is necessary only when vision limits a person's functions or in extremely rare medical conditions. A thorough discussion of all available options is a good idea.

Some types of cataracts, specifically those which create glare but leave vision intact at low light levels, can often be helped through the use of ultraviolet and antireflective lenses. These lenses do not cure cataract but they may help a person see better with their cataract. Some people with cataract see well in the distance but have trouble reading. For these people magnifiers and "low vision aids" may allow better sight if they choose to live with their cataracts. Another type of cataract forms a cloudy spot in the center of the lens, in this case a dilating drop which enlarges the pupil may allow a person to see better by looking "around" the cataract. If these options are not helpful enough or if the cataract progresses to the point where surgery is recommended, a second opinion is very wise.

Even though cataract surgery is one of the safest operations done in the United States, it still has risks associated with it. It is not possible to remove cataracts with a laser. Actual physical removal of the cataract by opening the eye is still required. Even perfect surgery can have limited improvement in sight if other parts of the eye are diseased. These conditions should be carefully tested for with a comprehensive eye exam prior to surgery. Second opinions can prevent unnecessary surgery if they reveal other sight limiting diseases. Second opinions regarding surgery should be obtained from an Ophthalmologist. An Ophthalmologist is fully trained as a doctor of medicine able to perform a comprehensive medical examination of the eye. After completing medical training and receiving the Degree of Doctorate of Medicine (M.D.), the Ophthalmologist completes an internship and then continues with three to five years of additional training in a hospital accredited for medical and surgical specialty treatment of the eye. The Ophthalmologist is then eligible to undergo examination by the American Academy of Ophthalmology and if qualified by rigorous written and oral examinations is awarded board certification. A board certified Ophthalmologist is legally and professionally certified to diagnose and treat all eye disorders and is your best source for second opinions.

America sings at Prince

The Prince Restaurant, Route 1, Saugus will present the renowned Crossroads Company in "America Singing," a musical revue depicting Americans at work and play, on Saturday evenings from Nov. 8 through Nov. 22.

The two act revue is written, directed and produced by the Crossroads Company. Act I, "Americans at Play," is a running narrative which will include a romp through American popular music of the 50s, 60s and 70s intermingled with historical perspective. Act II, "America at Work" is the company's version of "Mr. Rogers' neighborhood depicting the working people of the country.

According to Arthur Castraberti, owner of the Prince Restaurant, the pre-show will begin at 7 p.m. in the Princess Room, and will include a warm-up and sing-along. The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. with a short intermission between acts. The restaurant's "after 9" menu will be available to patrons.

"With the national consciousness focused on patriotism, we thought it would be fun to present 'America Singing,'" Castraberti said. "It's a fun look at ourselves, our heritage and our country full of history and that proud to be an American feeling!"

Reservations are encouraged and can be made by contacting the Prince Restaurant at 233-9950 or 233-9953.

Exchange students needed

We are seeking families to host students from Brazil, Mexico, Japan, England, Spain, and Germany.

One of these boys or girls, individually selected for you, will live as a member of your family while he or she attends the local high school. These excellent students are very carefully screened, covered by medical insurance, and provide their own spending money. They are eager to experience our American way of life while sharing their culture, but they can only do so if you are willing to open your hearts and homes to them.

If you would like to participate in this unique learning experience, please contact International Student Exchange, P.O. Box 58, Fort Jones, California 96032 or call 1-800-233-HOST, or 1-916-468-2264 in California.

Goodwill auction each Saturday

For anyone who's ever followed the signs to a yard sale on Saturday morning or braved the crowds at Flea Markets, Morgan Memorial Goodwill has something you'll be interested in. Each Saturday beginning at 10 a.m., Goodwill conducts an auction of their contributed goods at their Morgie's store, 95 Berkeley Street, Boston.

"We like to think of our auctions as 'the biggest yard sale in Boston' except better," explains Tony Volk, Goodwill Operations Manager. "Our auctions have almost everything the yard sales or flea markets do. But we have a better selection of merchandise, more merchandise and through the auction system, buyers get to set their own prices."

Ron Maynard, a well-known auctioneer hosts the auctions. Merchandise includes something for everyone — furniture, sporting goods, toys, bikes, appliances, televisions, stereos, bric-a-brac, box lots and much more. Most items are in working condition but everything is sold on an "as is" basis.

"Surprisingly, almost everything we get is in working order. People don't give us something unless they feel it has some value," explains Volk. "People buying items at our auction get real bargains. One woman bought a television set for $1.00. She said it was worth a dollar to find out if it worked or not. And another man got a vacuum cleaner for $4.00. You should have seen his eyes light up when it zoomed on as he plugged it in after the sale."

According to Volk, large appliances and furniture are donated on a regular basis to Morgan Memorial's main office at 95 Berkeley Street in Boston. Since the suburban Morgie's stores primarily sell clothing, housewares, books, and toys, all the larger items are saved for the Saturday Auction.

Volk says they have found auctions to be the best way to sell large merchandise. People who wish to contribute large or heavy items are requested to bring them to the receiving dock at 95 Berkeley Street, Boston. Help is available to unload donations Monday through Saturday from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Smaller household items and clothing can be contributed at Morgan Memorial Goodwill Attended Donation Centers located in Arlington, Concord, Lexington, Natick, Needham, Newton, North Reading, Peabody, Sudbury, Wayland and Wellesley.

"Everyone benefits from these auctions. The buyers are able to get great bargains and the auctions offer us a new way to market larger merchandise that we have waiting to be sold. Then we use the proceeds to help pay the wages of the handicapped people who process our goods," says Volk.

Auctions are held at the Morgie's dock at the corner of Chandler and Berkeley Streets. Preview of the items to be auctioned starts at 9 a.m. and on street parking is available. For more information on the auctions, call (617) 357-9710.

Volk is optimistic about the success of Morgan Memorial's new project. "We've got a great selection of goods, now all we need is to get the bargain hunters down here. With the increasing popularity of used merchandise, I think we have a tremendous fundraising opportunity," concludes Volk.

Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries is a non-profit agency which provides rehabilitation and vocational training to people with a variety of handicaps and special needs. Each year hundreds of thousands of donated goods are sold at the Morgan Memorial Goodwill stores.

Keep it small

All Aboard for the magical world of model trains and miniatures at the Shriner's Auditorium in Wilmington. Greenberg's Great Train, Dollhouse & Toy Show will be held on Saturday and Sunday, November 8th and 9th, from 11 AM to 5 PM.

The events of those days will revolve around the varied train layouts and exhibits, repair and advice, miniature clinics as well as such concerns as how to wire a dollhouse. There will also be an extensive book and gift store.

The Shriner's Auditorium is located off of I-93, Exit 39 (Look for signs on Fordham Road).

Fresh Pressed cider

At this time of the year, what could be more refreshing than a cold glass of fresh pressed apple cider?

Today's emphasis on health and nutrition has increased the popularity of apple cider. An excellent source of potassium and iron, the sweet juice contains no sugar and has only 87 calories per 6 ounce glass.

Unlike apple juice, fresh cider is unfiltered and unpasteurized so that it contains a greater amount of apple solids. When making cider, three or more varieties of apples are chosen to create the perfect blend between sweetness and tartness.

Cider, a perishable product requiring refrigeration, stays fresh for two weeks before fermentation begins.

For a list of Massachusetts cider makers, contact the Mass. Dept. of Agriculture, 100 Cambridge St., Boston MA 02202 or call (617) 727-3018.

Extrication

The Massachusetts Civil Defense Training Academy at Bradley Palmer State Park, Topsfield will conduct an extrication course on November 1-2. OEMS credits are available to protective service personnel. Contact the academy by phone for additional information: 887-5775, 727-2368.

Ghost Writer

The Simmons College Graduate Program in Communications Management will sponsor a seminar led by journalist William Novak, on Wednesday, Nov. 5 from 7-9 PM. Novak, ghostwriter of "Iacocca", Herbert Schmetz's "Goodbye to the Low Profile", and Sidney Biddle Barrow's "Mayflower Madam", will discuss his collaborations and offer advice on editing and writing.

The seminar will be held at Simmons College, 300 The Fenway, Boston, in Room

Street safety rules for children offered

"In autumn, children and adolescents become especially vulnerable to street accidents as they spend more time outdoors, enjoying the last warm days of the year before the winter chills set in," says Gary Fleisher, M.D., chief of the Division of Emergency Medicine at The Children's Hospital in Boston. "This is a perfect time for parents to review street safety guidelines with their youngsters."

Parents need to take this advice seriously as street accidents are a leading cause of death among children and adolescents. The majority of these accidents occur in boys between the ages of 4 and 12 years, with the highest frequency at age 8.

Motor vehicles are responsible for the majority of street accidents, killing more than 11,000 children a year. Bicycle injuries are also common, occurring most often when a young cyclist turns too sharply, emerges suddenly from an alley, driveway, or parking lot, or when he or she is hit by a car.

"Many street accident injuries treated in Children's Division of Emergency Medicine might have been prevented," says Dr. Fleisher. "While supervision and guidance are important, the best ways to teach street safety awareness to a child are by setting an example and by providing instructions."

To prevent accidents among young children, Dr. Fleisher suggests the following street safety tips:

Set a good example by obeying street signals and by carefully looking both ways before crossing a street.

Designate safe routes to certain destinations when the child is old enough to walk or to bike along a street without supervision. When selecting these routes, consider hazards such as construction sites or abandoned buildings, and safety factors such as crossing guards and stoplights.

Tell a child to yell for help and to run to the nearest public place if he or she is being followed by someone in a car or on foot.

Always supervise a child who is riding a tricycle. Tricycles should not be ridden in the street, but in safe areas such as neighborhood sidewalks or parks.

When selecting a bicycle for a child, make sure that the child can ride comfortably. A bike that is too large or too small can lead to injuries.

Help for alcoholic's family

The Alcoholism Service at Eastern Middlesex Human Services soon will be offering a new counseling group for people who are living with adult alcoholics. Alcoholism is a family illness that affects all family members, not just the problem drinker. Spouses and other relatives of alcoholics often find themselves caught up in fruitless efforts to get the alcoholic to stop drinking, at the same time that they are trying to handle family responsibilities single handedly. They wind up feeling drained, frustrated, angry, guilty, and under a great deal of stress.

The group at Eastern Middlesex Human Services offers people living with adult alcoholics a place to learn more about how alcoholism affects them, and about different ways of coping with the illness. Through talking with other people in the same boat, members may share survival strategies and provide mutual support. The group of fers a forum through which members may begin to find ways to take better care of themselves.

The group for relatives of alcoholics will meet at Eastern Middlesex Human Services on Thursdays, with the time of the meeting determined by the needs of those interested in joining. The group leader is Susan Stillwell, LICSW, one of the clinics' alcohol counselors, who has had extensive experience working with both alcoholics and members of alcoholic families. There is a charge based on a sliding fee scale, but no one will be refused service because of an inability to pay. A service contract from the Division of Alcoholism will subsidize those individuals unable to pay.

Anyone who is interested in joining this group, or in finding out more about it, should contact Susan Stillwell or Alice Cerino at 246-2010.

Family group convenes

A new service for families experiencing the impact of prolonged mental illness will be offered at Eastern Middlesex Human Services, 7 Lincoln Street, Wakefield.

The service is designed on the premise that emotional problems occur in all families and are only one aspect of the family's history, potential for growth, and potential for happiness.

We believe that people, in common circumstances, can collectively, through mutual support, find useful answers.

The Family Group will meet every other week: Thursday, in the late afternoon, at Eastern Middlesex Human Services, 7 Lincoln Street, Wakefield, Ma. 01880.

There will be four meetings in all. An opportunity for further meetings will be possible. For further information, contact: Mrs. Ellis, weekdays, 246-2010 or Dr. Fisher, Tuesday or Wednesday, 727-9550, ext. 356.
